

Meat Scandal Draws Cries For Inspection

By Colonist Staff Writers

Greater Victoria medical health officer Dr. J. L. Whitbread said last night he will consult city officials today to see if legal action can be launched against a butcher shop accused of selling diseased meat.

His latest statement came a day after he told reporters that sale of such meat did not constitute a breach of existing law.

But up until last night City Solicitor T. P. O'Grady said he had not been consulted on the case and could not say offhand whether or not prosecution is possible.

He recalled a section of one city bylaw which forbids sale of diseased meat on pain of a $50 fine.

Dr. Whitbread again refused to name the butcher shop where a metropolitan health board inspector said he confiscated seven pounds of abscess-riddled beef liver and learned a further 10 pounds of liver from the same beast had been sold to customers.

The public health chief said so far as he knows the health department could take no legal action even if a Greater Victoria resident died as the result of eating diseased meat. An official of the attorney-general's department doubted that criminal action would be advisable in such a case but added that a civil action for damages could be launched.

"There is a high degree of civil liability on a butcher," the official said.

If the 17 pounds of infected liver did nothing else (up to press time there were still no reports of ill-effects from its unknown consumers), it sparked these moves:

• With rare unanimity the heads of the four Greater Victoria municipalities called for compulsory meat inspection.

• Agriculture Minister Frank Richter said he will ask for early action on his request to municipal affairs officials for a ruling on whether or not the B.C. Municipal Act forbids municipalities from passing their own meat inspection by-laws.

Heathman Faces Locked Doors

CHARLES HEATHMAN

VANCOUVER (CP)—Charles Heathman, who told a Vancouver newspaper April 21 he killed a 10-year-old boy, Wednesday was committed to a mental institution for an indefinite term.

Magistrate James Bartman said he hoped that Heathman, 38, would receive treatment that would help restore him to a normal life.

Magistrate Bartman said Heathman's case would be reviewed from time to time before any decision was made on his release.

Soul-Searching

The magistrate said he had "lain awake at night searching his soul" in considering his verdict, but on the evidence before him he could make no other choice.

"We ought to show restraint and forbearance," the magistrate said in preamble. "Only God knows what's in this man's heart. Let us be dignified and charitable to him and all concerned."

Heathman was twice sentenced to be hanged for the suffocation murder of 10-year-old Donald Otley in Vernon, B.C. Labor Day, 1960. He was later freed by the B.C. Court of Appeal.

Held in Seattle

Under the law of double jeopardy a man finally acquitted of a charge after due process of law, cannot be tried again on the same charge.

It was under a Mental Hospitals Act warrant that Heathman was sought immediately after the Sun confession was permitted late last night made. He was arrested in Seattle April 23.

Heathman told Magistrate Bartman Wednesday his story told to Sun city editor Jack Books and reporter Simma Holt was not true, and that he was drunk when he spoke to them in a long session Good Friday.

Oak Bay Cuts Rate!

By JACK FREY

Oak Bay council yesterday reduced its tax levy one-half mill below the 1961 level by holding its 1962 budget within $112,338 of last year's budget.

It was the only municipality in Greater Victoria which has a lower mill rate than last year.

"We were attempting to hold the line and still maintain the service," said Reeve George Murdoch. "We chopped off a lot of items in every department."

RATE OF 46.5

The 1962 total mill rate is 46.5 compared with 41 last year. The tax for general operation and debt purposes is down to 22½ mills from 23 mills in 1961. Schools are 18 mills, the same as they were last year.

Taxes will be "up slightly" for those who had an upward revision during last year's reassessment of land and improvements. They will be down

Airliner Crash Kills 24

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—A Brazilian airliner with 27 persons aboard crashed and exploded while making a landing approach in rain at Vitoria airport last night. There were three survivors.

Police at Vitoria, 250 miles north of here, reported the plane burst into flames as it was making the approach.

Daylight At Dusk

B.C. Hits Low

Climate 'Poor' For Capital

VANCOUVER (CP)—An independent economic report says British Columbia has a poor investment climate and the inflow of private capital to the province last year hit a six-year low.

W. B. Haughan, president of Grosvenor-Laing (B.C.) Ltd., says in an introductory review of a 150-page report called Real Estate and Business Trends, 1962, published by technical experts of the Vancouver Real Estate Board:

• Government spending is no substitute for private capital inflow.

• The slowing of capital investment last year slowed establishment of secondary and manufacturing industry vital to a healthy economy.

• B.C. can expect a marked expansion in secondary industry only when Canada adopts a positive trading policy, and when the investment climate in the province is improved.

• Total capital investment in B.C. for all sectors during 1961 was $1,200,000,000—$150.

'More Jobs, Trade If Tories Return'

Grits Play On Jobless Says Fleming

WALKERTON, Ont. (CP)—Finance Minister Fleming said Wednesday night the Liberal party is not as happy as it was when unemployment was increasing.

"They have tried to make a political football of unemployment, and that is the sum total of their contribution to the solution of the problem."

CLINTON, Ont. (CP)—An annual increase of 250,000 jobs under a Progressive Conservative government was forecast Wednesday night by Trade Minister Hees.

Mr. Hees, speaking at the nomination convention for Huron riding, also said the export trade will continue to expand and that there will be an export surplus on merchandise trade of $400,000,000 this year.

L. Elston Cardiff, 73, member for Huron for 22 years, was named unanimously to contest the riding in the federal election.

No Matter How You Slice It...

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A Federal Trade Commission hearing examiner yesterday ordered National Bankers Service, Inc., to stop claiming "Hollywood bread" would help people lose weight.

The examiner's order, not a final decision, said the bread contains just as many calories per pound as any other bread, but is sliced thinner.

Liver Unpopular

• Consumers in six of 11 independent Greater Victoria butcher shops showed a marked disinclination for liver. (One butcher said liver sales at his store dropped from a normal 20 pounds to two pounds overnight.)

• Seven of 10 independent butchers thought that the metropolitan health board should have disclosed the name of the shop in which the tainted meat was found.

• Council of Women president Mrs. H. I. MacKenzie said meat inspection will be on the agenda of next general meeting on Monday.

• A sample of the abscessed liver was delivered to Royal Jubilee Hospital for bacteriological and pathological examination to determine the nature of the infection.

• One-time meat inspection foe Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow said he was shocked by the case and reversed his stand of Jan. 8 this year when he referred to meat inspection as just another burden on taxpayers.

Metropolitan health board officials reported they have been unable to trace the balance of the carcass from which the liver came and said it might not have been sold in this area. Earlier a spokesman said the balance of the animal would probably also be infected.

Municipal councils have been reluctant to pass meat inspection bylaws themselves because of a widely-held belief that a two-year-old Municipal Act amendment militates against such legislation.

But Agriculture Minister Richter said he is not altogether sure that this is the case. He said he has inquired of the municipal affairs department if this is so and so far has not had a reply.

He said it was certainly not the intention of the government to deprive municipalities of the right to pass compulsory meat inspection bylaws but that the amendment might have inadvertently had this effect.

Inspection Area

Mr. Richter expressed concern at the Victoria situation and advocated establishment of a meat inspection area under terms of the B.C. Meat Inspection Act.

Free enterprise must take the first step by building a custom slaughterhouse at a minimum cost of about $30,000. The agriculture minister said he believes this is no problem and local health authorities say two groups are interested in providing such facilities.

When a proper abattoir is built Mr. Richter's department would declare the southern and of the island a meat inspection area and no uninspected meat could be sold except by a producer directly to a consumer.

The province would support an application from the abattoir to the federal government for federal inspection services. Mr. Richter anticipates no trouble in obtaining federal inspection.

Federal inspection might actually help local meat producers, he agreed, because it would qualify them to sell to certain large food chains which insist on federal approval of their meat.

Local producers who wanted to sell for resale in the inspection area would have to have their stock slaughtered at a custom abattoir and would pay a nominal charge (50 cents a head for beef) for inspection. The producer would then be free to sell the meat to whom ever he wished.

Mayor R. B. Wilson yesterday led the municipal vanguard on the meat inspection drive.

He termed sale of the off-feeding liver "an extremely serious matter."

Samuel Reeve Stanley Murphy said he was surprised to learn that public health authorities did not have meat supplies under close scrutiny already. He said meat inspection must come but that producers must be free to sell where they please and not be captive suppliers to a slaughterhouse.

Oak Bay Reeve George Murdoch was critical of the

Did Blasts Betray Lusitania Cargo?

LONDON (AP)—An American ship diver who plunged 30 feet to the wreck of the Lusitania has uncovered indications the Germans may have been right in saying the liner carried munitions when they sank her 47 years ago.

The famous British passenger ship went to the bottom of the Atlantic May 7, 1915, 20 minutes after being struck by a German torpedo. Of the 1,958 persons on board, 1,198 died.

Among the drowned were nearly 300 Americans and the sinking, as much as any other single event, set the mood for U.S. entry two years later into the First World War.

The Germans claimed they were justified in treating the Lusitania as a ship of war because she was carrying munitions and may have been armed.

In an attempt to clear up the mystery, 23-year-old John Light of Elmhurst, N.Y., led a team of divers to investigate the wreck 10 miles off the south coast of Ireland.

Underwater pictures by his expedition were shown on British television Tuesday night.

Light's findings led him to believe the wreck of the Lusitania has been tampered with. A section of steel deck appears to have been cut away with torches.

Only one other expedition—as far as is known—has ever been down to the wreck. This was a private venture in 1935.

There is no dispute that the ship was designed to carry guns. The British steam, built in 1906, was armed when torpedoed. Light found no gun on the foredeck as shown in the ship's plans.

Said NBC television producer Maurice Harvey, who worked with Light on the subject:

"The evidence seems to indicate the wreck has been tampered with. Light believes British admiralty divers have been down to remove the ship's guns."

There is more evidence that health board for withholding the name of the meat outlet where the infected liver was discovered.

"There is a definite duty on the part of the board to make this known to the public for their own protection," he said.

"I have felt for a great many years that there is a great laxity in protecting the public from diseased meat," he continued, adding that it would be a simple matter for a producer to market a tubercular animal.

There is no safeguard against sale of an animal known to be diseased which has been ordered destroyed, he added.

"The inspector comes back to see if the animal has been done away with and the farmer points to a mound of loose earth and just says, 'well, I buried the old cow.'"

"There are unscrupulous people in the world who will sell anything," he warned.

Equimall Reeve A. C. Wurtz was opposed to public identification of an erring butcher unless the man knew he was selling diseased meat. He said he and his council have long favored compulsory meat inspection for the area.

CONCRETE EVIDENCE

City health chairman Ald. Mrs. Lily Watson, a veteran city hall agitator for compulsory meat scrutiny, pointed out the health board's tainted liver discovery with the remark, "now we have concrete evidence that meat unfit for human consumption has been sold... Before this we were told it could be or it might be."

BOUND TO CONTINUE

Ald. Michael Griffin said sale of contaminated meat is bound to continue without compulsory inspection.

Pointing to the notice of the health board's first up-off on the liver case, Ald. Millard Mooney said that if a housewife spotted the infection it puzzled him how a butcher "would let it pass over his counter."

NO OTHER WAY

Ald. Edgelow, whose opposition to meat inspection last January failed to deter council from recommending that

His Mosquito-Bite Remedy Still Works After 17 Years

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: Concerning hypersensitivity to mosquito bites, I suffered so from the extreme itching that I would scratch the welts until they bled. None of the suggested remedies helped until a pharmacist friend told me that brewer's yeast tablets were a preventive. I took tablets daily for two summers and since then I haven't needed any. That was 17 years ago. Now, in some mysterious way, mosquito bites are only mildly and briefly irritating to me. —C.I.

Thank you, sir, and I hope that others can benefit from your experience. As a matter of fact, the use of Vitamin B (which is in brewer's yeast) has been recommended for this purpose.

The exact reason has not been determined, but the prevailing theory is that it isn't the activity of the Vitamin B so much as a subtle "odor" of the skin which results—an odor we don't notice but one that mosquitoes dislike. Whatever the reason, it works very well for some people, but not for others. However, it's a simple remedy for those who find it effective.

Dear Dr. Molner: Recently you wrote that exercise would not reduce a particular part of the body, but that reduction would be uniform. I really think you displayed considerable ignorance.

I have lost 3 inches in my arms, 4 inches in my hips, 3 inches in my thighs, 3 inches in my waist, while adding 11 000,000 below the 1956 total and $400,000,000 below the peak reached in 1957.

Mr. Haughan says the economy this year will be helped by several favorable trends but hindered by the poor investment climate.

NO SUBSTITUTION

"It is not enough to point to new ferries, new roads, massive power projects as evidence of an expanding economy."

"Capital expenditures by government are no substitution for an inflow of private capital upon which a diverse range of healthy secondary industries may be established."

BASIC INDUSTRIES

He said the "undoubted riches" of B.C.'s natural resources are not inexhaustible. Past experience had shown basic industries were subject to stress and strains arising from factors not always within provincial and federal control.

"We can no longer afford to be complacent about our future as one of the world's prime sources of forest products, fish and minerals," he said.

"Surely to accept a reduction of capital investment in other private fields without concern is complacency."

In the opening page of the report Premier Bennett said capital investment in B.C. "has increased nearly 70 per cent in the last 10 years."

LOWEST LEVEL

The report contained a mildly hopeful outlook for home construction in B.C. this year.

It said house construction starts in the province last year were 8,039, the lowest level in eight years. The total compared with 9,916 in 1960 and 13,893 in 1959.

Apartment starts in B.C. were 3,131, up sharply from 2,088 the previous year. The peak was 3,713 in 1959.

There were slight increases in almost every department.

Police salaries rose from $60,167.46 to $63,376, there are three additional men on the fire department where costs rose from $93,796.84 to $112,195, and there are an additional clerk and relief clerk in the police department.

PAID $51,500

The mill rate was struck after council pared $34,516 from its provisional budget estimate of $2,041,981. The 1962 budget is $1,987,472 compared to a 1961 budget of $1,875,134.

Reeve Murdoch said the budget is "pretty good on the whole. The municipality is growing all the time and services have to be extended to keep up with the growth."

"Costs keep going up all the time, and labor and materials have to be taken into consideration. I think council did a tremendous job balancing this out to still maintain essential services."

Biggest cut was in parks construction, where council lopped $14,790 from an original estimate of $39,160. The amount taken away had been earmarked for Uplands Park, where land was to be graded and seeded and drainage and footpaths installed.

An increase in education costs from $585,701.30 in 1961 to $642,438 in 1962 was covered by a surplus from last year's collection.

Social welfare is $63,000 this year compared to $50,086.23 last year.

World Peace

"Must Come"

MOSCOW (UPI)—Pravda said Wednesday the Russian people believe peacetime co-operation "can and must develop" between the Soviet Union and the Western powers who joined forces in the Second World War to defeat Nazi Germany.

In an article marking the 17th anniversary of Germany's surrender, the Communist party organ said the time had come for "Western politicians to realize the hopelessness and fallacy of their positions on the German question."

Adenauer Opposes U.K. Entry

Empire Ties Source Of Friction?

BONN (UPI)—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer opposes Britain's admission to the European Common Market as a full member, authoritative sources said yesterday.

Adenauer is understood to believe Britain, with its many Commonwealth relations, is too involved in interests outside of Europe and thus would disturb the Common Market of the European continental "Six." However, he would not object to a British relationship with the Common Market as an associate member, the sources said.

Adenauer is reported to have voiced his opposition to British membership in a restricted meeting of the Berlin city government two days ago.

In a news conference on the same day, Adenauer said that "not too many" nations should be admitted to the Common Market, lest it would stop serving its function. It was in reply to questions by Berlin city councillors on that remark, that Adenauer came out against Britain's admission, the sources said.

Norwegian Foreign Minister Halvard Lange, in Bonn on an official visit, has asked the West German government for explanations.

Adenauer's remarks appear to line him up with French President Charles de Gaulle who has been cool toward Britain's admission.

Political observers here believe that Adenauer has one more reason than de Gaulle to oppose British membership: If Britain also joined the political community, the trend toward a "Europe of Fatherlands" will be strengthened and political integration of a supranational type will become a remote objective. This may suit de Gaulle, but it is a nightmare to Adenauer.

De Gaulle's reasons for his opposition to Britain are partly economic and partly the question of leadership within the community. So far, de Gaulle is the undisputed leader, with Adenauer willingly yielding to him.

Adenauer's remarks about British membership were not disclosed publicly. The official German line so far has been that Bonn hopes for "a successful conclusion of the Brussels talks" about Britain's admission.

Adenauer's vice-chancellor and economics minister, Ludwig Erhard, on the other hand, is still carrying the ball in the fight for full British membership. Erhard, who was president of the EEC council of ministers last fall when Britain applied for membership, considered this his personal success.

Clean Bill for Atlas After Centaur Blast

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Camera and radio data Wednesday revealed that the cause of the explosion that wrecked the maiden flight of the high-energy Centaur space rocket was centred in the second stage. That analysis apparently frees the Atlas first stage from blame and preparations can proceed as planned for astronaut Malcolm Scott Carpenter's orbital flight, set for May 17.

SEATTLE (AP)—An economist who admits he is a "kill joy" took a hard look at space programs Wednesday and indulged in a bit of negative head-shaking about:

1. Communications and weather satellites. He called their outlook "somewhat fuzzy."

2. Travel to the moon. "Mankind is not going to be enriched either by exploiting resources on the moon or by establishing residence there."

William H. Meckling of the government-sponsored "think factory" called the Rand Corp., of Santa Monica, Calif., told the second annual conference on peaceful uses of space:

No Sobs Over 'SOB' Steelmen

Kennedy Admits Epithet But Adds 'That's All Past'

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy conceded Wednesday that on the night the steel industry started raising prices he agreed with strong language his father once used about steel executives.

But he emphasized at his press conference that both he and his father, former ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy, were thinking only of steel men and not about businessmen in general.

And he added, "but that is past... now we are working together, I hope."

RATHER HARSH A reporter asked if Kennedy wanted to comment on "a rather harsh statement about businessmen" which he was quoted as having made the night U.S. Steel Corporation announced a price increase it later revoked.

Kennedy, who grinned widely, and the reporter avoided repeating the quote. The New York Times published it this way:

"My father always told me that all businessmen were sons-of-bitches but I never believed it till now."

Kennedy said it was inaccurate, insisting neither he nor his father held such broad feelings.

"It quotes my father as having expressed himself strongly to me," Kennedy said, "and that in this I quoted what he had said and indicated that he had not been, as he had not been on many other occasions, wholly wrong."

What was wrong, Kennedy said, was the suggestion that his Citing Sir Winston Churchill's famous phrase on the need for diplomatic discussions, the president said that every effort must be made to resolve the dangerous Berlin situation.

"We may fail," he said, "but the effort will be worth it."

He made the comment at his news conference when asked about the objections to U.S. Berlin policy now being increasingly voiced by West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

Into the Open

BRITISH OPPOSITION leader Hugh Gaitskell has finally given public notice that his party is prepared to do battle with the Macmillan government over its announced intention of leading the United Kingdom into the European Common Market.

Until now both major political parties have taken pains to see that the question of Britain's entry was kept well away from the realm of domestic politics—a situation which suited the pro-ECM government leaders admirably because it allowed them to follow their set course without hindrance on the home front.

In recent months, however, a change in public thinking has taken place, largely brought about by the government's refusal to discuss the problems and implications involved in Britain's union with the European Economic Community.

The growing apprehension was first noticed within the ranks of the governing Conservative party itself when a number of members found their questions regarding the ECM, whether made publicly in Parliament or privately in caucus, were being either avoided or ignored.

In desperation this not unsubstantial group of Tory MPs took matters into their own hands by publicly publishing a declaration of their opposition to Britain's entry. Now numbering almost 50, they could seriously affect the government's majority in the House if the matter becomes a national political issue.

That the import of this situation has not been lost on the Labor party is evident by Mr. Gaitskell's statement Tuesday, in which he firmly declared his party's intention to bring the whole ECM issue into the open and take a definite political stand on it. By doing so he has good reason to believe that many anti-ECM Tory supporters would swing over to his side.

It is, of course, surprising that the government's pro-ECM attitude has not been challenged by its political opponents before now. And because of this it can only be surmised that Mr. Gaitskell now feels that public sentiment is sufficiently aroused against the proposed move for the Labor party to step down from its fence-sitting position with some hope of making political gain.

In announcing this new and positive stand the Labor party is ready to take. Mr. Gaitskell not only sees Britain's entry into European union as meaning the end of the Commonwealth, but also disagrees with the Macmillan government's view that Britain has no choice but to enter the ECM.

Whatever the result of Mr. Gaitskell's change of heart, it must be agreed that he has served the British public well in placing the onus on the government to bring the matter out into the open.

A Clean Sweep

THE PROPOSAL to remove the cluster lamps from downtown streets caused such consternation that it seems unlikely the strings of colored lights which for 25 years have been a feature of the city scene can be taken down without regret and opposition.

And indeed it is a pity in a way if as a result of the elimination of the power poles in the underground wiring program these decorative lights must go. They have served well in giving the central district a gay and bright atmosphere when in use.

But although the possibility exists that the colored lamps could be strung across the streets from building to building when the power poles are removed, it must be acknowledged that Alderman Geoffrey Edgewood has a telling point when he says that the wires and bulbs detract from the daytime appearance of the shopping area. They would look worse, moreover, if they were to remain when all the rest of the overhead wiring had disappeared.

A clean sweep would seem to be preferable, and the more so if, as the alderman has suggested, it could be accompanied by a co-operative effort of the city and its merchants to work out a modern approach to downtown ornamental lighting, yielding even more effective results after dark but having no unsightly aspects in the daytime.

Why the Rebuke?

AND WHY SHOULD the RCAF rebuke its European air division for paying a courtesy salute to veterans of the Luftwaffe's first war Richthofen Squadron? If there were more of this there might be less tension in the world.

As well say that Chancellor Adenauer should never be welcomed in Ottawa, London or Washington. Much more anomalous, really, if that is to be the argument, is the fact that Rommel's chief-of-staff, General Hans Speidel, is currently the NATO land commander in Europe, with Canadians under his command.

Should he visit the Canadian brigade, as undoubtedly he does on occasion, the rebuke in this instance would be if there was failure to give him "red carpet" treatment.

What was the offence? The Richthofen veterans were holding their annual reunion, similar to veterans' reunions all over the world, near the RCAF wing. They asked permission to visit the Canadians. It was granted and they were made welcome.

This was a gesture typical of the camaraderie that has existed, at least until recently, all through history among former combatants. It reflects the acknowledgement of all good fighting men of their former opponents.

In this case also it was a recognition of days when a certain code of chivalry lingered among opposing forces. These Richthofen flyers belonged to a period when war in the air had the quality of sporting combat, so different from the modern ruthless application of air power. The personal element was respected by pilots of both sides.

It is to their credit, rather than the reverse, that the present crop of RCAF fighter pilots should deem it absurd to perpetuate an animosity never overriding their predecessors of 1914-18. It was entirely natural too that they should take their Sabre jets into the air and show them something of the art and skills that have now been fashioned in aerial displays.

They were playing host and extending suitable courtesy.

Even in the last war, it could be mentioned, some trace of chivalry was to be noted. It was a German officer who notified B.C.'s Dieppe hero, Colonel Cecil Merritt, that he had won the Victoria Cross and saluted him in respect and offered his congratulations.

And it should hardly be necessary to add that West Germany is now a comrade-in-arms of Canada and the other NATO nations.

Thinking Aloud

... of shoes, and shoes,
and seeing that ...
BY TOM TAYLOR

NOTICE that Professor Tony Emery, one of my favorites even if, probably, he doesn't know it, says there is a suspicion latent among Canadians that anything Canadian cannot be very good artistically.

He was talking about art, which incidentally he cited neatly as the purveyance of beauty, but he could just as well have stopped his sentence at "very good," period.

A weakness in the Canadian character is lack of pride in Canada—its skills and ways in all realms—and the assumption that what originates elsewhere must be better than the home product.

And this is such a favored land, too; it should be held at a premium, not discounted.

A NEWS dispatch says a British TV play about the return of Adolf Hitler caused quite a sensation. The details are lacking but the German embassy asked for a copy of the script.

Did it suggest that he is still alive, I wonder?

A college colleague of Tony Emery's, H. R. Trevor-Roper, probed in person the circumstance of Hitler's death and in a fascinating and documented book depicted conclusively his last inebriated days in the Berlin bunker.

But even so doubts are occasionally voiced.

Perhaps they won't be stifled until the probabilities of old age eliminate the former teacher from the living scene.

THE foregoing brings to mind the ingenious theory that Britain's Unknown Warrior is really Lord Kitchener, whose death by drowning in 1916 left a somewhat mysterious aura.

Memoirs of some of his most notable colleagues of that day—Churchill's included—have remarkably little to say about his loss, for instance.

Kitchener had been known in his Sirdar heyday to express the hope he would be buried in Westminster Abbey, and a fanciful idea was evolved to presuppose the strange workings of fate. It suggested that Kitchener had survived the sinking of the Hampshire and been washed ashore and all previous memory, thereafter to enlist by instinct as a common soldier and fall in battle in France.

And, as the Unknown Warrior, finally to be buried in the sanctuary of his desire.

A FAMOUS nuclear physicist, Sir John Cockcroft, said in Vancouver this week that only in the spectacular fields of atomic science—spunk, rocketry, etc.—was Russia ahead of the West. In the more peaceful aspects of nuclear development the Soviets were far behind.

One comforting angle, at least.

Sir John is one of the fathers of nuclear discovery, having helped in the 1932 splitting of the atom that nowadays threatens to split the world asunder. He won a Nobel prize for his part in this work.

I would not doubt but that some days he wishes the atom had never been split.

MR. Harold Winch says the Liberals and Conservatives are going to make the present election campaign the dirtiest in history. Surely not. From what I have read of old-time elections this one, even at its worst, will be simeon pure by comparison.

And what will the NDP be doing? Sitting idly on the sidelines?

I have never believed that all the sins or all the virtues are contained solely in any one party. I should imagine that if one plays rough the others can be equally adept.

Including, I am sure, the NDP.

"Of course it gives me a warm feeling inside, knowing our boys are up there protecting us, but I'd never get used to those little bombs!"

Washington Calling

Gnawingly Uncertain Future

By MARQUIN CHILDS

THE uneasy relationship between Washington and the Federal Republic of Germany in Bonn was brought into sharp focus by a recent visitor to Washington. Heinrich von Brentano carries the burden of Germany's past and present with an air of impatient martyrdom and he looks to the future and the changes it threatens with gloomy foreboding.

In short, the former foreign minister stands as a kind of symbol for the Germany of today. He could be a character out of a novel by a latter-day Thomas Mann, gazing with tortured introspection into the German soul with his own conscience as a mirror of that soul.

Part of the explanation lies in the word former. Von Brentano, who gave complete and unquestioning loyalty to Chancellor Adenauer, had to make way after the elections last fall for a successor. If he has doubts about that successor, Gerhard Schröder, he is too loyal to let an outsider know them.

The fact remains, however, that he is no longer exercising supervision, under the fatherly eye of the chancellor, over Bonn's foreign policy. And this is at a moment when, as he sees it, the policy he so carefully nurtured for six years is challenged by new and dubious proposals on Berlin put forward by the Americans.

That was the warning he gave to President Kennedy with the intensity that characterizes his every utterance.

Even though he is no longer in the Adenauer government—he is leader of the Christian Democratic party in the Parliament in Bonn—he left no doubt with those to whom he spoke that he represented the views of the chancellor. But at the NATO meeting in Athens his successor, Schröder, gave his approval to Secretary Rusk in Rusk's talks with the Soviets. And here a larger question arises as to the centre of power in the new reformed Germany and the extent to which a German veto can narrow the Berlin negotiations.

For two months Chancellor Adenauer, who will be 87 in January, has been at his favorite vacation resort of Cadenabbia on Lake Como in Italy. At the end of six weeks he interrupted his stay to go back to Bonn for one week and then he returned to the simple villa he occupies at Cadenabbia.

While various Bonn officials have from time to time made pilgrimages to Cadenabbia for consultation with the chancellor, the fact remains that the man who is in the controls of government has been away from his office for a long and critical period.

This is further complicated by the fact that in the fall elections the Christian Democrats did not get an outright majority and the Adenauer government must nominally at least share authority with the Free Democrats. And always in the background are the rivalries of those who would succeed Adenauer, since it is assumed that he cannot serve the full four years of a third term. Understandably at the age of 86 his powers of concentration and industry have weakened.

The proposals put forward by the Kennedy administration and duly submitted to Bonn seem on the whole cautious enough. Von Brentano objects most strenuously to the idea of mixed commissions on which East and West Germany would be represented for the regulation of various phases of life between the two halves of the country. He also objects to the international authority to be made up of representatives of 13 nations to regulate the movement of traffic on the access routes between West Berlin and West Germany. His fear is that such an authority would cut back the freedom of movement and thereby impair the status of a free Berlin and its tie to a free Germany.

What emerges is a fear of any change in the status quo—the condition of things put together under the late John Foster Dulles and Adenauer at a time when Germany was concentrating on physical revival and political problems could be kept on the shelf. This attitude persists into a time when important changes are occurring everywhere and those changes cannot help but alter the face of divided Germany.

The Kennedy administration apparently believes a change is taking place in Moscow with the chance of a realistic negotiation in Berlin. The impending changes in West Germany are obvious enough, with the long Indian summer of the Adenauer regime coming to an end.

The era has meant extraordinary prosperity, the accumulation of a $7,000,000,000 balance of gold and dollars, heroic work at rehabilitation and in recent years a rapidly increasing volume of trade with the Communist bloc and particularly with the Soviet Union. It is not surprising that all this should have encouraged the belief that things could be restored exactly as they were before—before 1933—with a minimum of pain.

But attitudes have been changing in this country, too. The enormous circulation of William Shirer's history of the Third Reich and the trial of Adolf Eichmann in Israel have revived the horrors of the Nazi period. And this has been coupled with an impatience over the prolongation of the Berlin crisis and its seeming hopelessness.

Henry von Brentano is a figure of moral rectitude. He invokes the virtues of the past. But in his appearance here he seemed to stand, tragically enough, between a brief but certain past of which he was an architect and a gnawingly uncertain future.

Today In History

By The Canadian Press

May 10, 1962

Rudolf Hess, at one time considered their apparent Adolf Hitler, parachuted from an airplane near Glasgow 21 years ago today—in 1941—after quietly taking off from Germany. He was held in Britain until the end of the Second World War and then sentenced to life imprisonment as a war criminal.

1844—The seat of the Canadian government was moved from Kingston to Montreal.

1497—A m.e.r.i.g.o Vespucci sailed on his first voyage of exploration to the New World.

By an interesting coincidence, Saskatchewan's Industry Minister Russell Brown was in Ottawa that same day attending a national power grid conference called by Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

"The gossip," he said, "have been, swearing that I, rather than Mr. Erb, would be leaving ... but the only place for which I have left is Ottawa, as you can see, to attend this conference."

Mr. Brown is still a member of the provincial cabinet in his own province, despite the gossip which attached itself unasked to his name.

But Mr. Erb, in spite of the fact that he drove so far and so fast to that nomination meeting in Assiniboia last March to silence rumors that he was about to defect, has resigned from the CCF party and from his Saskatchewan cabinet post.

He attributed his decision to the controversial Medical Care Act which secured passage last fall when he was minister of public health, and to the fact that the CCF party which he had supported for so long had seen fit to submerge itself in the new-fangled New Democratic Party.

Reports from the prairies have it that he tends to share Mr. Argue's belief that the NDP is dominated by the hierarchy of the Canadian Labor Congress and that the role served for the Canadian farmer in the new party is not what it should be.

Will Mr. Erb choose to follow Mr. Argue one step further by seeking sanctuary in the Liberal Party? He has shown no sign of being in any haste to do so. But then, neither did Mr. Argue, or Mr. Ross Thatcher, another ex-CCF-turned-Liberal, when they accomplished the transition. A cooling-off period is now accepted as proper in such circumstances.

Research Scientists

Off the Trodden Trails

By BRYANT EVANS

THE research scientist, as a human being, is a special case. I have this on the authority of Richard O. Grisdale of the Bell Laboratories, the great research institution which employs about 1,000 scientists in its research departments. From these laboratories have come some of the most revolutionary scientific developments of the last decade. Consequently, Grisdale ought to know what research scientists are like and what they need to be the most productive.

These research men, says Grisdale, are the "artists of science." They are like artists in temperament, in their sense of independence and in their lively imaginations. They are chiefly driven by an overdeveloped curiosity. Questions occur to them which are not answered or to which the answers given seem unsatisfactory. They then feel motivated to find out the answers.

To do this, they leave the tried and trodden trails and strike out into the unknown. Often their success depends on their not accepting statements which everyone else does accept. They have to be innovators.

As a result, scientific research does not prosper as a team or consensus effort. It is a matter of an individual's curiosity and an individual's imagination.

However, this does not mean the research scientist shuns contact with other scientists in his field. He is eager to know what they are doing and he is curious about their ideas. If the ideas of others can be shown to be correct, he can accept them even if they are in conflict with his own.

Although the research scientist's work is a personal matter, it is not a solitary one. He must be able to communicate his ideas to others. He must be able to work with others. He must be able to work with others.

The Packback

It's All Minced

By GREGORY CLARK

THIS is the minced era. To the young, nothing is more attractive than a hamburger and hot dogs. Hot dogs are just as minced as hamburgers, though minced in a different way. You watch the cookery pages, you will see that nothing gets more space nowadays than casseroles. And what are casseroles but minced?

Salads are minced. Potatoes are generally minced as French fries or potato chips. All this was pointed out to me by a friend who is in radio. "Radio is minced," he says. "like hamburgers. You seldom any more hear any long-continued, solid performances of music. Just recently, a half-hour morning symphony program was displaced by the conventional variety type of disc jockey program consisting of three-minute recordings, one-minute commercials, maybe four-minute interview or commentary bits."

The solid half-hour of symphony afforded too serious a basis of comparison with the minced type of program, which, of course, is essential to the interjection of commercials. It would not be good to offer the public roast beef or a leg of lamb when we are in the hamburger business.

The NDP Exodus

By ARTHUR BLAKELY

IT was only two and one-half months ago that Mr. Hazen Argue (CCF — Assiniboia) staggered Canadian socialism by turning in his resignation as a member of the New Democratic Party and as leader of the CCF-NDP parliamentary group.

While his irate ex-colleagues were picking themselves off the floor to scream "foul," Mr. Argue, disdainful of the charges of high treason hurled at him, peered into his own private crystal ball and promptly forecast more disasters awaiting the NDP.

Other Saskatchewan folk who had hitherto supported the old defunct CCF party through thick and thin shared his conviction that the NDP was dominated by "big labor" and were following his example of defection.

He didn't use the word "defection" because it is one to which he has not been partial. But as he saw it, supporters were deserting the NDP "in droves."

Mr. Argue, indeed, went further. "Some very prominent persons" would be found among the deserters.

The New Democrats didn't take kindly to Mr. Argue's prophecies at all. They heaped ridicule upon them. Ridiculous. Absurd. Mr. Argue was, at best, indulging in wishful thinking.

By mid-March, a stream of reports from Saskatchewan indicated that some NDP people were, indeed, following Mr. Argue out of that party. How many? Who could tell? None of them could be described as "very prominent persons."

Mr. Argue insisted, however, that a real exodus was under way. He remained insistent, too, that some "big names" would be found among the deserters.

One persuasive report had it that Mr. Walter Erb, Saskatchewan's minister of public works, who had served in CCF cabinets under ex-premier T. C. Douglas, and his successor, W. C. Lloyd, was one of the big names Mr. Argue might have in mind.

When Mr. Douglas (now national leader of the NDP) called a secret meeting of the NDP hierarchy on Parliament Hill on March 19, the question of Mr. Erb's position in the party was put squarely up to those attending the conference.

Mr. Douglas himself was much too busy, it was explained at the time, to leave the conference "for even a minute" to answer this and other questions. But Mr. Douglas Fisher (CCF-NDP—Port Arthur) emerged to act as conference spokesman.

Mr. Fisher described reports of Mr. Erb's possible defection as "a piece of fiction."

He went on to provide some evidence in support of this point of view. On the same day that reports of Mr. Erb's defection had begun to circulate in Regina Mr. Erb himself, after the legislature had risen for the day, raced by car to the NDP nomination meeting in Assiniboia as a means of helping to spike the rumor.

By an interesting coincidence, Saskatchewan's Industry Minister Russell Brown was in Ottawa that same day attending a national power grid conference called by Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

"The gossip," he said, "have been, swearing that I, rather than Mr. Erb, would be leaving ... but the only place for which I have left is Ottawa, as you can see, to attend this conference."

Mr. Brown is still a member of the provincial cabinet in his own province, despite the gossip which attached itself unasked to his name.

But Mr. Erb, in spite of the fact that he drove so far and so fast to that nomination meeting in Assiniboia last March to silence rumors that he was about to defect, has resigned from the CCF party and from his Saskatchewan cabinet post.

He attributed his decision to the controversial Medical Care Act which secured passage last fall when he was minister of public health, and to the fact that the CCF party which he had supported for so long had seen fit to submerge itself in the new-fangled New Democratic Party.

Reports from the prairies have it that he tends to share Mr. Argue's belief that the NDP is dominated by the hierarchy of the Canadian Labor Congress and that the role served for the Canadian farmer in the new party is not what it should be.

Will Mr. Erb choose to follow Mr. Argue one step further by seeking sanctuary in the Liberal Party? He has shown no sign of being in any haste to do so. But then, neither did Mr. Argue, or Mr. Ross Thatcher, another ex-CCF-turned-Liberal, when they accomplished the transition. A cooling-off period is now accepted as proper in such circumstances.

LETTERS to the Editor

To be considered for publication in whole or in part letters must be on subjects of general interest, not more than 200 words in length, and, if signed with a pen-name, must be accompanied by the writer's name and address.

Much interest is given nowadays on medical care plans in our province, some parts of the U.S.A. and also particularly in Saskatchewan. Recently in Regina an organized meeting of doctors was bitterly hostile to such a plan and yet in the southwest corner of that province, Health Region Number One has been in operation for 12 years with wonderful success and satisfaction to everyone.

Why does not the rest of Saskatchewan follow the example of the Swift Current project where hospitalization and medical care are provided at a cost of $80 annually to every family. Are the aims of party politics to preclude the wishes of the people and the sacred oath of Hippocrates?

The medical college at Saskatoon has been built up in 15 years to be the most famous and progressive in the west but now we see the political opposition there combining with the profession to defeat this social and economic plan!

Perhaps Tommy Douglas may yet be recognized as a benefactor of mankind with Pasteur, Edison and Einstein.

Exciting Performance

The singers, directors, musicians, indeed everyone taking part in any way in the Musical Arts production of Puccini's opera Gianni Schicchi cannot be too greatly praised. It was a highly artistic and exciting performance throughout of impressive professional calibre. A beautiful feather in Victoria's centennial cap, thanks to the Musical Arts.

Showing True Colors

Judging by recent reports in the press, a great many of the medical profession in Saskatchewan are showing their true colors. The residents of this province will soon be in a position to determine those that are true humanitarians and those that are in practice for one purpose only. No doubt those falling in the second group will lose no time in destroying their dedication certificates.

"OVER-EXPLOITED".

Intolerable Situation

May I add my voice to the many others saluting your editorial "Doctors in Disarray"—a commendable analysis of the intolerable situation forced by the CCF in Saskatchewan.

One wonders why socialistic politicians chose the field of medicine for their vote-catching. Logically, they should have begun with basic necessities, the state food store first. The state should supply everyone with food—the adequately fed the gluttonous and incidentally the hungry. Then state housing. Those owning their homes would be re-housed at state expense or mortgage payments taken over by the state. This is exactly the same line of reasoning socialistic politicians profess with their version of a medical plan. After the socialists had taken care of the basic necessities with state-supported programs for all—including those who could pay their own way, the end result could only be astronomical taxation, an unstable or bankrupt government and drastically reduced standard of living for the entire population...

Oak Bay Duplexes

After a month of accommodation-hunting in Oak Bay I was very pleased to note justifiable strong opposition by taxpayers to the proposed law which would prohibit the building of additional duplexes in that desirable municipality. From the account of the meeting it is clear that the taxpayers are the better informed as to the availability of rental accommodation in the municipality.

What the municipal engineer said is true, there is an abundance of well-constructed apartments in Oak Bay but from my recent experience they are available only to those who do not have a single child or a pet.

While apartment houses continue to bar pets, and frankly I do not blame them although a different attitude exists in respect of such accommodation in eastern Canada and the U.S.A., the conversion of many of the beautiful older houses in Oak Bay into duplexes, of character compatible with the district, when such houses become available, would be an admirable way to provide much needed rental accommodation there for those who are now barred from the well-constructed apartments, etc.

Election Coverage in B.C.

Press Irresponsible, Says Strachan

Opposition leader Robert Strachan yesterday blasted the B.C. press for being "completely irresponsible" in its coverage of the present federal election campaign.

But, he quickly added, it was not the fault of reporters. "In this election, many of the newspapers are slanted to suit the desire of the publishers."

REALLY IN ORBIT

"Then, on these slanted and often non-factual stories, they base their editorials. Then you are really out in orbit."

"The question I am asking owners and publishers of B.C. newspapers is this: How can they expect people to make sensible decisions in this age of crisis if they refuse to give fair and adequate coverage to every political party?"

Mr. Strachan bitterly objected to the way the Saskatchewan doctors' dispute with the CCF government had been handled in the B.C. press.

And, he said, the NDP was not getting a fair deal in federal election coverage. He was asked to cite examples.

"Take the Victoria Colonist," he said. "In the presentation of news and editorial policy, there is nobody in this election except Diefenbaker."

"The Victoria Times, the Vancouver Sun and to a lesser degree the Vancouver Province's it's Pearson and the Liberals. That's it. How in this crucial age can we expect people to make sensible decisions."

"So far as the Sun is concerned you can read the paper from cover to cover and you'll hardly see a mention of the prime minister. But they have

HAROLD WINCH

NDP Man Wants CCF Tag

VANCOUVER (CP)—Vancouver East NDP candidate Harold Winch said yesterday he may print the initials CCF on his outdoor election posters.

"I may put the initials CCF in small letters down in a corner," Winch said.

But he wanted to quiet all speculation that this was a sign of dissatisfaction with the New Democratic Party which was born of a merger of the CCF and trade unionism.

"Heck, I'm a national vice-president of the NDP," he said.

"All my signs will read New Democratic Party in large letters," he added.

"It's incredible, but I find many people who don't realize the CCF is now the New Democratic Party. I get asked why I am running NDP instead of CCF."

BROCKVILLE (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker declared Wednesday night his government has no intention of acquiring any nuclear arms for Canada as long as there is any chance of achieving disarmament.

"We do not intend to expand or allow the expansion of nuclear weapons beyond those who have them," he said. "We want disarmament."

PLANES AVAILABLE

Mr. Diefenbaker made the statement at a Conservative party rally here.

"We will have available the necessary aircraft and Bomarcas."

"But so long as we are pursuing the ways of disarmament we will not allow the extension of the nuclear family into Canada."

PEARSON ATTACKED

The Conservative leader, seeking re-election June 18, copied the statement on his position on nuclear weapons with a slashing attack on the Liberal party's senior adviser and Opposition Leader Pearson's policies.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the government had declared its nuclear arms policy "definitely and directly" in 1958 when it said it did not want to see the spread of nuclear weapons.

"INCOHERENT"

He said the Liberals had been "shuffling, shilly-shallying, and shifting," and their stand was "confused, incoherent and contradictory."

The Liberal policy could be summed up, he said, by the phrase, "I could if I would and I might if I should."

"It is neither fish nor fowl."

'No Choice Soon'

Douglas Warns Doctors

KITCHENER (CP)—National Leader T. C. Douglas of the New Democratic Party said Wednesday night doctors who refused to work under a national medical scheme might find themselves with nowhere to go.

He said state medicine is expanding so quickly throughout the world that doctors soon will have no choice in the matter.

LONG SPEECH

Mr. Douglas was answering questions from the floor after an 85-minute speech to a Waterloo North nominating convention.

He was asked how the New Democrats would introduce a national medical scheme if doctors would not accept it.

MICKED, TOO

Mr. Douglas said he doubted there would be much opposition nationally, despite the attitude of some Saskatchewan doctors in opposing that province's plan.

"All the nations of Europe have medical insurance plans, so has Mexico. And President Kennedy is trying to get one through the United States Congress."

SIGNS OBVIOUS

Mr. Douglas warned that unemployment in Canada is going to become much worse if either the Conservatives or the Liberals win the June 18 federal election.

He said the signs of increased unemployment are obvious. "You don't need any secret reports to tell you what's going to happen," he said.

TERRIBLE EFFECTS

Already about 600,000 Canadians were out of work. Within the next three years the results of the post-war baby boom would bring 1,800,000 new workers into the labor force.

This would be coupled with a tremendous increase in automation—"with terrible effects on unemployment."

JOBS VANISHING

Mr. Douglas said that by 1970 one of every seven jobs will vanish because of automation. "And it's not only factory workers who will be involved. It can affect everybody."

Fascism Feared

Peace Comes First Say Communists

WINNIPEG (CP)—Peace was suggested as the primary issue of the June 18 general election campaign Wednesday night by Leslie Morris, leader of the Communist Party of Canada.

Speaking to about 200 persons attending a meeting for candidates of the Winnipeg North and Winnipeg North Centre ridings, the candidate for Toronto Trinity said there are only three real issues in the campaign.

TWO CANDIDATES

World peace was first, followed by employment and trade.

Mr. Morris was speaking in support of Winnipeg North Centre candidate Don Currie and the Winnipeg North candidate, provincial party leader Bill Ross.

Mr. Ross described Winnipeg North as "the heart and hotbed of communism in Canada."

NOT SO STRONG

He noted that the first communist member of a city council in North America was selected from the area 30 years ago and that representation on council by a Communist has been unbroken since.

Mr. Morris, a 57-year-old full-time party worker, said: "Let no one be under the illusion that democracy in the United States and Canada is so strong that it cannot fall under fascism from within."

CO-EXISTENCE

"Canada needs a policy for peaceful co-existence in the world, a policy for national survival and a policy for economic survival."

Mr. Morris was to leave today for Vancouver with meetings scheduled Friday in Port Alberni, Saturday in Courtenay and Sunday in Vancouver.

'NDP Vote Is Vote For Tories'

HAMILTON (CP)—A vote for the New Democratic Party is a vote to keep the Progressive Conservative government in office, Lester Pearson, national leader of the Liberal party, said Wednesday night.

Speaking to a public rally in this city of industrial workers, Mr. Pearson urged NDP supporters to vote Liberal in the June 18 election if they want to achieve many of the objectives of the NDP in a government.

"A vote for the Liberal party is a vote for actually achieving some of the objectives of the NDP," said Mr. Pearson.

"But what is a vote for the NDP? In its practical effect, it's a vote for keeping the Diefenbaker-Fleming government in office."

The Liberal leader, winding up a motor tour of the Toronto-Hamilton area, dismissed the Social Credit party in a sentence—"Social Credit is a regional rather than a national party"—but he made a strong pitch for the NDP vote.

Israel Parades Military Might

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI)—The armed forces staged their biggest military parade to mark the 14th anniversary of Israel's emergence as an independent nation.

An estimated 800,000 persons, largest independence day crowd since the first parade in 1948, jammed the streets to watch the military march which included all branches of the armed services.

Jobs-for-All Goal At Every Shipyard

CINZINGWOOD, Ont. (CP)—The Diefenbaker government plans to move this summer towards full employment for every shipyard in Canada.

Transport Minister Balcer said Wednesday night.

Addressing a Progressive Conservative nominating meeting in this Georgian Bay town where shipbuilding is a major industry, Mr. Balcer said the government will embark on a shipbuilding program that will restore the deep-sea fishing fleet of Canada to its rightful place in world markets.

The Liberals had offered when the government attempted to build up the Great Lakes fishing fleet, "but now everyone knows how successful that has been."

About 600 persons filled the school auditorium where the meeting was held.

Wall Street Buffeted By Sellers

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market slumped to new lows for the year in active trading Wednesday.

The market was driven down in heavy early selling, then began to rebound, cutting its losses and creating some gains as the ticker tape ran late. But it wasn't enough. The list still remained lower on balance.

After a period of hesitation another selling drive developed and this battered down prices to their worst of the day by the close.

Wall Street's noted no particular news to account for the upset, regarding it as chiefly technical. Some remarked, however, that the Washington hearings on the securities investigation and the United States administration's further emphasis on a non-inflationary economy, did nothing to help sentiment.

Main List Hit

TORONTO (CP)—Wide-spread industrial losses plunged the stock market into its greatest one-day drop in more than two years during light trading.

Most sections in the main list were hard hit. Losses for the year were touched by Alberta Gas, Algoma Steel, B.A. Oil and Imperial Oil, down as much as 1%.

Steel Company of Canada fell to 20 1/2, a 1962 low, but recovered to 20 1/2, down 1/2.

Moore Corporation fell 2 1/2, Abitibi 1 1/2, Walker-Gooderham 1 1/2, and Alcan 1 1/2, while Trans-Canada Pipe Line, Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, Massey-Ferguson and Bell Telephone all declined in a 1/2 to 1% range.

Royal Bank and Canadian Breweries were among the few gainers, each up 1/4. Bank of Montreal rose 1/4.

International Nickel dropped 1/2 and Consolidated Mining and Smelting 1/2.

Moore Declines

MONTREAL (CP)—Stocks were sharply lower in active trading.

Moore Corporation fell 2 1/2 to 53 1/2 in heavy trading to lead the decline. Abitibi fell a point to 47 1/2. International Nickel fell 1/2 to 81 1/2 and Aluminum dropped 1/2 to 24 1/2 in active trading.

Consolidated Paper fell 1/2 to 43 1/2 and Pacific Petroleum fell 1/2 to 14 in active trading.

CPR eased 1/2 to 25 1/2 and Hudson's Bay Company was unchanged at 12.

Activity in Mines

VANCOUVER—MacMillan-Powell was easier at 20 1/2 at the close, and Aluminum eased to 24 1/2 but most other industrials were firm.

Mines were active and generally lower. McKinney Gold was top trader, closing higher at 57. Kamloops slumped five cents to 13 1/2 and Peel sagged to 35. Craigmont, Granduc, Bethlehem and Western among coppers held firm.

Montreal Bonds

MONTREAL (CP)—Bond prices were slightly lower in moderate trading.

Short-term Canadian and provincial were mainly unchanged with an easier undertone, developing. Long-term Canadian were to 1/4 lower while corporate issues were unchanged.

Rusk Asks for Help To Save Viet Nam

CANBERRA (UPI) — U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk yesterday called on the free world to "lend a helping hand" to stop Communist aggression in South Viet Nam which he said threatens the independence of all the peoples of Southeast Asia.

Rusk made the appeal in a speech at an Australian Parliamentary dinner. It followed a two-day meeting of the ANZUS (Australia, New Zealand and United States) Pact council on mutual defence problems with special emphasis on Southeast Asia.

VIET NAM SUPPORTS
A communique issued at the end of the council meeting expressed full support for the current measures being taken to help South Viet Nam defend itself against Communist aggression "fomented, directed and supported from North Viet Nam."

Also endorsed was the creation of a "government of national union" in Laos.

Free Us Plea To UN

WINDHOEK, S.W. Africa (Reuters) — The first United Nations representatives ever to visit the disputed territory of South-West Africa arrived here yesterday. They were greeted by Negroes bearing placards denouncing South Africa's apartheid policy.

A group of several hundred Herero tribesmen waited at Windhoek Airport to meet Victor Carpio of the Philippines, chairman of the UN special committee.

The placards read: "Please release us from South African apartheid," "We are victims of the South African government's inhuman apartheid policy," and "Please implement the UN resolutions on S.W.A."

New Indies Federation Must Have Strong Core

LONDON (CP) — Colonial Secretary Maudling told West Indian leaders Wednesday that a strong federal government is the first essential of their plan to create an eight-island federation in the eastern Caribbean.

Maudling was speaking at the opening of a constitutional conference with delegations led by the Premier Errol Barrow of Barbados and the chief ministers of the seven governments of the Windward and Leeward island group.

Their speeches indicated that the division of powers between the central and the territorial governments would be one of the major issues.

SHADOW OF BREAKUP
The conference was being held in the shadow of the pending formal dissolution of the original West Indies Federation. Sharp criticism of the colonial office was expressed by E. M. Gairy, chief minister of Grenada, who said it was to blame for the failure of the present federation.

PRAISE CANADA AND U.S.
"I am informed that the Canadian and United States experts who have visited our territories have reported favorably and that the two governments have set aside funds to help our development," Gairy said. "But both Canada and the United States are looking to Britain to give a lead and Britain is not willing to commit itself," he said.

Maudling said: "This is not a salvage operation to save something from the wreckage of the West Indies Federation but a constructive approach to build something new which would best serve these territories."

LONDON — Archbishop of Canterbury says the American plan to explode a hydrogen bomb 500 miles in the air "is a piece of silliness."

"I regret enormously the decision that America should explode an H-bomb," he said. "We already have a deterrent and that has reached saturation point. I regret now that there should be tests taking place. It is a piece of silliness."

Such an explosion, he said

Now you can have all the ease and convenience of ready-to-cook chicken
PLUS fresh-from-the-farm flavor. Here is how MANOR HOUSE can make good on that promise.

MANOR HOUSE fryers are chosen by their flavor age. Fryers reach their peak of flavor and are of uniform size when they reach 9 to 11 weeks old.
MANOR HOUSE segments are from similarly selected chickens.

Then, to keep their good fresh-tasting flavor, MANOR HOUSE fryers are immediately flash frozen in modern freezers to prevent flavor loss and tissue "dry-out". That's why they taste so much fresher than ordinary chickens.

But even the finest chickens must be protected from moisture and flavor loss of long storage. So MANOR HOUSE Frozen Fresh Fryers and segments are rushed to your store under refrigeration.

So you buy MANOR HOUSE . . .

Attendance Down All Over

Grid Accountants Spent Long Winter

By JACK SULLIVAN

Canadian Press Sports Editor

Canadian professional football has been eating high off the hog for years. Now, the time has come for officials to take a hard look at its financial structure.

Just about everybody connected with the game predicted a great new era when the East-West partial interlocking schedule was introduced last year.

That was when the flowers were blooming in July and when the nine pro clubs were preparing to unveil all-star material for the edification of their fans.

But it was a cold, bleak winter when the accountants took over.

Attendance was down right across the country. The defending champion Ottawa Rough Riders couldn't even fill the park in a sudden-death playoff game. There were gaping holes in the stands in the Western playoffs.

Edmonton Eskimos reported a loss of nearly $74,000. Calgary Stampeders lost $35,000. British Columbia Lions reported a 30,000 drop in attendance and a loss in the thousands of dollars.

BIG SPENDERS

General managers and coaches roamed the United States in search of talent for 1962. Money, apparently, was no object. For instance, Montreal Alouettes signed All-American quarterback Sandy Stephens of the Minnesota Gophers for a reported three-year no-cut contract calling for $20,000 a season and a bonus.

What is the reason for the attendance decline in the Eastern and Western Conferences? No one has yet come up with a clear-cut answer, but one thing is clear: The partial interlocking schedule, the first of a two-year experiment, wasn't a howling success.

Indirectly, the highly-successful National Football League in the U.S. may have had something to do with the attendance falloff, although games in this league didn't clash with the Canadian Football League schedule.

NFL ON TV

Fans from the Maritimes to British Columbia were exposed to NFL games via television for the first time in 1961 and it may be more than a coincidence that, for the first time in three years, attendance showed a drop in this country.

Now, as team officials are deep in preparations for the 1962 season, they might consider the success story of Green Bay Packers. They play in the smallest park in the NFL—seating capacity is only 38,669—and this week they reported a whopping $573,141 in the bank.

The Packers are community-owned with 41 directors, seven executive board members and 1,698 stockholders of 4,721 shares. They came into being in 1919 with no money. They passed the hat to pay expenses of the non-profit group.

The Packers survived many bleak years. This week, general manager and head coach Vince Lombardi reported to stockholders that net profits of the club in 1961 were $175,075—highest in history and more than 50 per cent above 1960 figures. Season ticket sales at Green

Foursomes Play Set at Colwood

Fifty-eight pairs have entered the Centennial Foursomes, to be played at the Royal Colwood Golf and Country Club on Sunday.

Competition is over 18 holes of medal play with pairs being allowed one-half the total handicap of the partnership.

Wounded Pride Rubbed in Salt

By J. T. JONES

There was a young waiter in Victoria a century ago who was a cool character — cool enough to collect what was owed him and see his hot-headed boss clapped in jail.

The boss was James Wilcox of the Royal Hotel. What the waiter's name was we don't know.

The young man claimed Mr. Wilcox owed him $10 in wages. Mr. Wilcox snapped that the waiter was "not worth the salt to put in your porridge."

1862— Birth Of City

magistrate saw it his way, and assessed Mr. Wilcox the court costs as well.

Whereupon the hotel man blew his stack.

Leaping to his feet and waving his arms, he cried, "Well, if I can't get justice in this court, I'll appeal to a jury!"

Now this, as you know, is a poor way to address the bench. Magistrate Augustus Pemberton did the judicial thing. He ordered Mr. Wilcox into jail for 10 days for contempt, and took immediate affidavits from the clerk of court and the attending police as to the language used.

Mr. Wilcox said The Daily British Colonist of the following day, was escorted to "comfortable quarters" in the jail.

Well, the whole issue roused high feeling among some influential Victorians. There were apparently some who felt that a decent employer should not suffer for what was basically a fight with an upstart servant.

Others — there appear to have been more of these — felt that Mr. Wilcox had learned his lesson and shouldn't have to spend the whole 10 days in jail. It was, after all, a very busy time in the hotel business, what with hundreds of new people coming off the boats from San Francisco and the mainland almost daily.

So a petition was got up asking for his release, and after Mr. Wilcox apologized to Magistrate Pemberton, the magistrate himself presented the petition to Governor James Douglas. Mr. Wilcox was released that afternoon.

As for the young waiter, he had his $10, enough to buy a great deal of salt for his porridge.

DAVID GROOS

Regional-Health Liberal Candidate

REPORTS on the ELECTION

I am not going to pretend that I agree with everything the Liberal Party has done in the past, nor do I think that I am going to agree with everything it is going to do in the future. There's nothing wrong with this. No party is all good, no party is all bad. At election time we must strike a balance of rights and wrongs, and I believe the Liberal Party of Canada, it's past and present policies far outweigh in merit those of any other party. That's why I am a Liberal. We use voice our views, and we think this adds strength to the party.

Jaycee Grant Ruled Out But Hope for Unity Grows

Hopes that the Greater Victoria Celebrations Association and the Junior Chamber of Commerce might get together in future running of Victoria Day celebrations were voiced at a meeting this week.

The discussion arose when association chairman Joseph Wright told the meeting there was no hope that the association could expect a grant from the Jaycees.

He said, executives of both bodies met earlier to discuss a grant and the meeting went well. "It was turned down by the general membership though. Still, I feel we came closer to getting together with the Jaycees this year than ever before," Mr. Wright said.

T. J. O'Neill pointed out that 25 years ago there were reports in The Daily Colonist of both Jaycees and the then Victoria Celebrations Association running the event together.

"We have to beg for grants from the Jaycees, and from the municipalities. It is not right that an organization as old as we are should have to go begging," he said.

B.C. Police Get Leader For Defence

B.C. cabinet has named RCMP Assistant Commissioner Douglas Forrest as commander of all B.C. police forces for civil defence purposes.

He will head all municipal, regular and auxiliary police-men and will be authorized to recruit and train more police auxiliaries for use in any civil defence emergency.

Cabinet also appointed provincial fire marshal Basil Nixon as supreme commander of all firefighting forces in the province.

First full dressage show held by the Victoria Riding Academy will start at 9 a.m., May 20, at the Cedar Hill Cross Road grounds.

The competition, described as the "ballet" of horsemanship, will be part of the Victoria Day weekend celebrations and will be judged by Hermann Friedlander of Soquel, Calif., and Borg Olsen of Chilliwack.

Entries from many sections of Vancouver Island, the mainland, and the United States are expected.

In Court Today

City Man Accused Of Drug-Peddling

A man will appear in city magistrate's court this morning on a charge of trafficking in narcotics.

The charge—laid against a Victorian in his late 20's—is the result of an investigation conducted late last year by RCMP plain-clothes investigators.

The Crown will allege that the man sold a capsule of heroin to a police officer posing as an addict.

"We have waited until now to make the arrest, because the man's actions were being investigated in another connection," an RCMP spokesman said yesterday.

Some two weeks ago, an elderly Chinese was sentenced to 18 years in prison following conviction on the same offence.

Soldier Reprimanded

Man on Opium Charge Gets Light Sentence

OTTAWA (CP)—Bdr. Oliver Francis Johnson, 31, was given a severe reprimand by a court martial Wednesday for conduct to the prejudice of both good order and army discipline.

Johnson had received about 22 pounds of opium from a Chinese civilian clerk in Vietnam last year, intending to smuggle it to Saigon. But he changed his mind and left the opium behind, afraid of getting caught with it.

In essence, the court martial convicted him for breach of an army order issued in Indochina, warning military personnel against accepting from residents parcels or letters which "in all probability contain black market funds or opium."

The severe reprimand was not what the words imply—an official rebuke, or verbal dressing-down. The sentence means simply that the words are copied on Johnson's service record.

It was the lightest of seven sentences imposed so far on Canadian soldiers involved in smuggling of gold and opium.

U.S. Gambler Got Canadian 'Cut'

TORONTO (CP)—A hookup (Billy) Giacalone and Joseph between organized gambling in McDermott, topnotcher among the United States and Ontario operators, split the lion's share of a plush gambling house outside Windsor until it was closed in 1957, according to Detroit gambling czar Vito police evidence.

Inspector Jack Hatch, now head of the Ontario Provincial Police anti-gambling squad and former gadfly of the Windsor area gamblers, testified Giacalone told him last March that while the Roseland Club was operating he and McDermott divided 90 per cent of the take.

Information to gamblers from OPP in a gambling trial involving Feeley, denied any knowledge of a club in which of a mysterious "brief" previously mentioned in evidence before the commission. It was a detailed blueprint on how to gain currency last year.

The MP, who has done some pair, and its authorship remains legal work for McDermott and obscure.

CONTRADICTS 'MR. X'

Giacalone's claim, as related by Hatch, flatly contradicted a story told behind closed doors to the commission by Frank (Curly) Gardner — known as "Mr. X" until his identity and testimony were made public Tuesday—that he and Leo Flanagan, owner of the property where the Roseland was located, operated the club.

LEAKAGE

In a day of many faceted testimony, the commission under Mr. Justice W. D. Roach, also heard from Insp. Hatch more evidence about leaks of information to gamblers from OPP.

MP'S EVIDENCE

Other developments Wednesday: Arthur Makney, Progressive Conservative member in the last Parliament for Toronto Parkdale, said his late brother James, former Ontario mines minister, had denied trying to influence a Toronto magistrate.

Mendelssohn Music Sung Into Focus By Choral Society

By BETSY BENNY

It always seems that, in any music by Mendelssohn, melody is the most distinctive feature. The Victoria Choral Society presented Mendelssohn's Elijah before a capacity audience at Christ Church Cathedral last night.

PROPER FOCUS

Just as long as the performers brought the truly lovely Mendelssohn melodies into proper focus, the performance was delightful.

Contralto Eleanor Duff and bass Stanley Martin were the most consistently successful in this respect; the latter has not been heard to better advantage in a long time.

BRIEFLY RAGGED

The choral and orchestral performances were always quite adequate, sometimes brilliant and once in a while briefly ragged.

A 16-piece orchestra provided fine accompaniment and a particularly good overture and organist Richard Proudman was excellent.

Director was Rodney Webster.

Photographer of Year From Pioneer Family

City photographer W. H. Gibson has been named "Photographer of the Year" in B.C.

The award was made by the Professional Photographers Association of B.C. at the end of its three-day convention which brought close to 100 delegates to Victoria.

It is given for meritorious service to the association and the community at large. There was no such award in 1961.

Mr. Gibson heads a four-generation photography business established by his grandfather in Victoria before the turn of the century.

His father, Wilfred Gibson, Sr., ran the business for 50 years before handing over the reins at the end of the Second World War. He's still active in photography.

Now Mr. Gibson, Jr.'s own son, Sergei, is employed in the photographic studio.

The award committee cited service rendered to the Boy Scouts Association of Canada by Mr. Gibson, who prepared free of charge a collection of 100 of the best pictures he took at the Scout jamboree in Ottawa last year. The print exhibit is now touring Canada.

Mr. Gibson is a district commissioner of Boy Scouts.

Jack House of Victoria was elected president of the association.

Rights of Individual 'Went Out with Buggy'

REGINA (CP)—In the face of evidence that society has not yet come to terms with the automobile, there is a need in North America for a philosophy rather than a policy about highway use, F. W. Anderson, assistant professor of economics at the University of Saskatchewan, Regina campus, said Wednesday.

He discussed this need for philosophy at the eighth annual conference of the Canadian Highway Safety Council.

Mr. Anderson suggested "the development of this philosophy rationale is going to call forward a great deal of hard thinking."

He said, "You must be prepared to set up for examination time-honored preconceptions; you must calculate the costs, economic and social, to obtain service from concepts of freedom and the rights of the individual which became obsolete with the development of the automobile."

B.C. Teachers Getting Trade Union Complex?

VANCOUVER (CP)—B.C. School Trustees' Association president R. E. Lester says the B.C. Teachers' Federation appears to be developing what he terms a "trade union complex."

He said trustees are puzzled and concerned over the teachers' decision, at their recent annual convention, to investigate setting up a $500,000 war chest.

He said the teachers are seeking full professional status and at the same time want iron-clad trade union guarantees.

The trustees' association official said "if they want to be true professionals, they can't have both."

Servants Also Seek 'Squeeze'

VANCOUVER (CP)—A B.C. spokesman Wednesday promised an answer to this thorny question:

"If labor in general is able to squeeze capital in general, why shouldn't the civil servants have their squeeze too?"

Foresters Appeal Pay Boost

Provincial cabinet has set up a fourth board of reference to hear an appeal by a group of B.C. government employees against the recent three to five per cent wage boost.

Professional foresters are seeking higher increases.

The board will consist of Dr. H. F. Angus, chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, chairman; deputy labor minister W. H. Sands for the civil service commission, and Dr. Robert W. Wellwood for the foresters.

The B.C. Government Employees' Association, professional engineers and registered nurses in the mental health services are also appealing wage increases.

Dr. H. F. Angus, chairman of a board of reference in a pay dispute between the government and the B.C. Government Employees' Association, put the question to A. G. Richardson, chief provincial personnel officer.

Mr. Richardson promised to answer the question today.

The employees' association is appealing against the distribution of a $2,075,000 pay increase for civil servants.

BRIEF READ

The hearing opened Wednesday with the reading of an 85-page brief by the association followed by a 12-page brief from the government.

The government said if association demands are met the average monthly salaries of civil servants will be about $10 higher than those of other B.C. workers.

FAIR POLICY URGED

The association brief, read by secretary Ed O'Connor, said without a fair wage policy the government will be unable to recruit and maintain an efficient civil service.

Lifton Tells Story To Jury Today

VANCOUVER (CP)—Lawyer William Craig said Wednesday Eric Lifton will testify today at his own capital murder trial he saw a "red flash" from the gun of city detective Larry Short shortly before the police officer was fatally shot.

The lawyer said this point and the 22-year-old New Hampshire student's relation of the sequence of events that followed at the Bayshore Inn hotel room Feb. 9 will define the real issue of the trial—whether the death of Det. Short constituted "capital" or premeditated murder as charged.

Earlier Crown testimony told of the discovery of nine bullets, five of them similar to some Lifton had on his person, in Lifton's hotel room after the fatal shooting of Det. Short and Larry Kingston, assistant manager of the hotel.

Mr. Craig, opening the defence case in Assize Court, said Lifton will describe the flash, then how he backed against a chair, fell down and recalled nothing that happened after that.

LIE ON FLOOR

Airlines agent Paul Egley testified earlier in the trial he was ordered by Lifton to lie on the floor with Kingston and Det. Short. He said he was the only one of the three to emerge alive after a hail of bullets swept the room.

Mr. Craig said Lifton would generally agree with conversations alleged by the Crown to have taken place just prior to the shooting.

Doctors, Public Assured

REGINA (CP)—The Saskatchewan government will stand firm on implementation of its medical care insurance plan as long as Saskatchewan people want it, Premier Woodrow Lloyd said Wednesday night.

Mr. Lloyd urged people to "be firm and make clear" to their own doctors they wish the health care plan to have a fair trial. He also urged doctors to give the plan a fair trial. The plan is scheduled to go into operation July 1.

Mr. Lloyd promised that "no doctor will have to leave the province because of government interference in doctor-patient relationship."

He added: "One more thing I promise, that your government too will stand firm. As long as we know that the people want a health insurance plan in this province, we can stand whatever pressure opponents of such a plan may be able to apply."

No Lag Until Year's End

Work Assured for 1,100 Men As Shipyard Orders Pile Up

Payroll Aids Economy

The work force at Yarrows Ltd. shipyards is expected to hold at almost its present level of 1,100 men until close to the end of the year, general manager John Wallace said yesterday.

He said this represents a weekly payroll of some $100,000 in the economy of Greater Victoria.

The yard is completing outfitting of a new destroyer escort for the RCN, building a fisheries research vessel and several barges, and it has a backlog of orders for several more barges and a Canadian Coast Guard patrol vessel.

LAUNCHING SET

The $1,800,000 fisheries research vessel G. B. Reid will be launched June 20 and is scheduled for delivery before the end of the year.

About 100 men are employed on this job at present. The vessel will be launched with machinery installed and shaft and propeller in position. The number of men working on the job is expected to drop to about 75 during the outfitting.

SEA TRIALS

Another 500 men are working on completion of the destroyer escort Saskatchewan and this figure is expected to remain constant at least until the ship undergoes contractors' sea trials scheduled for November.

In August "basin" trials will be held aboard the warship during which boilers will be fired up and the machinery tested without the vessel leaving the dock.

The first of six medium-sized general cargo barges for Evans, Coleman and Evans Ltd. has recently been laid down. The last of the barges is scheduled for delivery in mid-August.

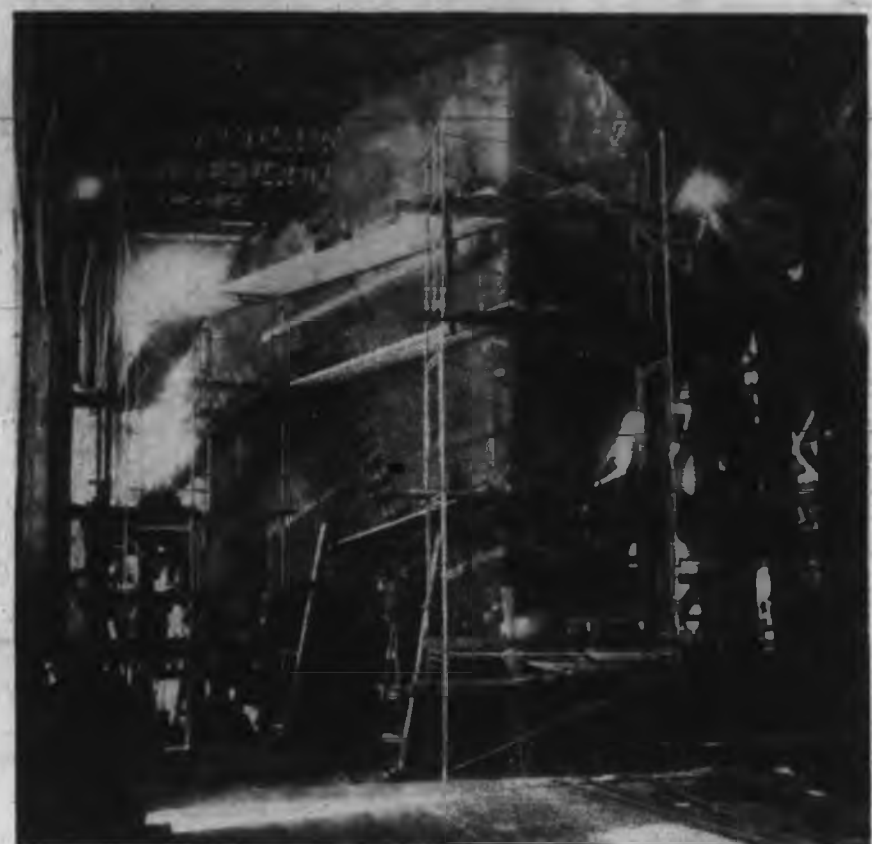

Nearing completion and due for launching early in June is the first of two giant bulk carriers for Island Tug and Barge Ltd.

300 EMPLOYED

The all-steel barges are 360 feet long, the largest on the Pacific. The second barge in this order will be delivered by the end of July. The job employs 200 men.

As soon as the fisheries research vessel is launched in June the first of two large general cargo barges, each 235 feet in length, will be started for Gulf of Georgia Towing, Vancouver. They will be completed by the end of August.

Start will be made in mid-August on the $774,000 Coast Guard vessel which is scheduled for delivery in 1963.

Research Ship Takes Shape

Launching date for new fisheries research vessel G. B. Reid has been set for June 20 at Yarrows Ltd. shipyards. The $1,800,000 ship will be delivered before end of year and is designed to help scientists study secrets of North Pacific.—(Colonist photo.)

City Homes Needed Now As Polling Places June 18

Polling stations are "urgently needed" in the Victoria electoral district for the June 18 federal election, returning officer Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre said yesterday.

Homeowners will be paid $20 for use of their home as a polling station and double that amount if two polling stations are in the same building.

A total of 125 polling stations will be needed in Victoria electoral district which includes the city, Oak Bay, the municipality of Esquimalt and the Saanich peninsula south of North Dairy Road, said Mr. de St. Jorre.

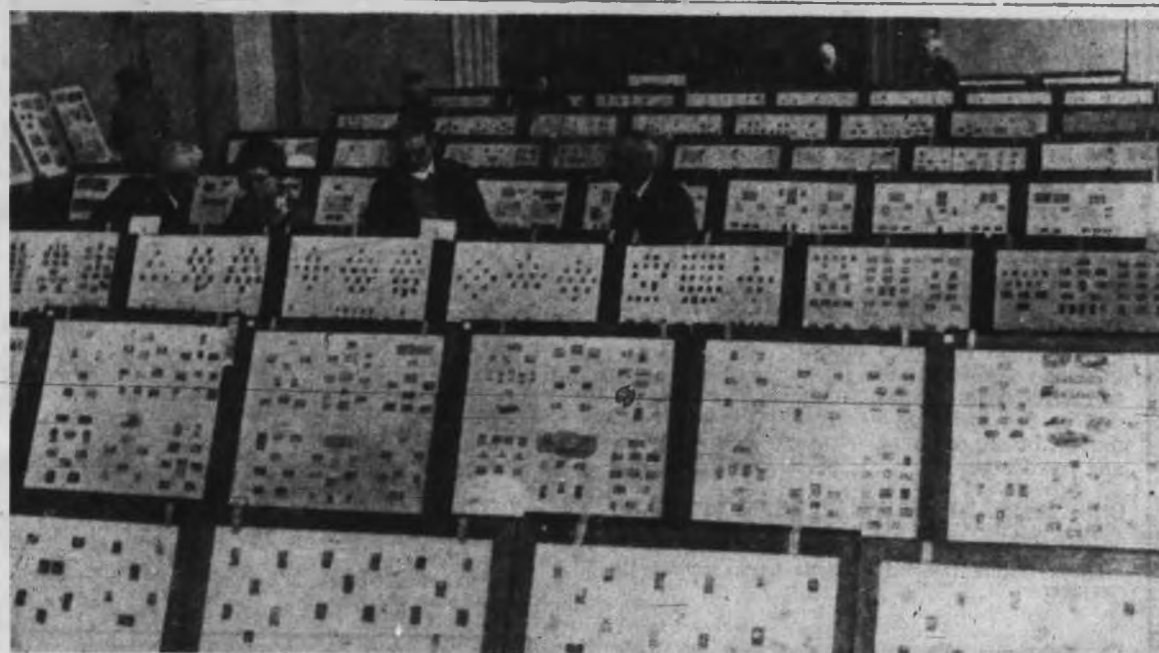

"Voters' lists cannot be printed until we get the polling stations" because the voting places have to be included on the lists, he said.

Voting will be from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m., daylight saving time, June 18. Persons renting their homes for this occasion will have to provide a curtained-off corner of a room with a table or desk and a pencil behind the curtain for the voters.

They will also have to provide another table for the deputy returning officer and his poll clerk, along with six chairs.

Persons interested should telephone the returning officer at any one of three numbers, EV 6-4361, EV 6-4362 or EV 6-4363.

The ceremony starts at 10:30 a.m. when a procession begins to move into the downtown area from Bastion Square, site of the old courthouse and the heart of old Fort Victoria.

Local historians and prominent citizens will dress in the costumes of famous Victoria characters of a century ago.

FAITHFUL SERVANT

Claire McCaul, dressed as Queen Victoria herself, will drive in state from the square to Centennial headquarters in an ancient automobile.

With her will be Hugh Ross, representing the old Queen's faithful Scottish servant of many years, John Brown.

Costumes of 100 years ago will be sprinkled throughout the procession.

Griffin Statement:

Tenders Called by July For Parking Garages

Tenders for two off-street parking garages the city plans to build downtown will be called before the end of June, Ald. Michael Griffin said last night.

Chairman of the city's downtown parking commission, Ald. Griffin made the announcement after a meeting between the commission and consulting engineers for the two buildings.

"Sketch plans have been prepared and we expect construction to take 3½ to four months to complete."

One of the garages will be built on View Street between Douglas and Blanshard and the other will be constructed at Yates and Langley.

Army Thrills Crowd In First Sunset Rite

In an eye-catching display of precision drills, three bands of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry carried out the first sunset ceremony in front of the legislative buildings last night.

Drawing round after round of applause from a rain-soaked crowd of more than 1,500, the brightly-clad corps of drums of the 1st and 2nd battalions and the regimental band gave a flawless performance.

Drumsticks flashed and clicked in one of the highlights of the evening as the combined drum corps of the two battalions put on a display of precision drumming carried out without a single spoken word of command.

In the final minutes of the ceremony the regimental band closed up with the drum corps to excerpts from Pomp and Circumstance and after playing the evening hymn sounded Retreat as the flag was slowly lowered by two regimental sergeants.

"I was a little worried," said Capt. H. A. Jeffrey of Edmonton, PPCLI director of music. "We had only time for one rehearsal. This certainly is a wonderful place for putting on these ceremonies."

The regimental band and 2nd Battalion corp of drums are here from Edmonton to take part in the trooping of the color ceremony at Work Point Barracks Saturday.

Rail Cut Repaired By E & N

Service was disrupted early Monday when a rockslide derailed two diesel locomotives pulling a load of freight cars. None of the freight crew was injured in the accident 15 miles from Victoria which spalled the head engine 100 feet down the side of a mountain.

The passenger dayliner is not yet back in operation.

Nation Going to the Cogs At a Backward Standstill

Peter Bruton's NOTEBOOK

INCIDENTAL INTELLIGENCE: Social Credit, it seems, has forged into an early lead in the mixed metaphor sweepstakes.

Two examples . . .

Deputy leader Earl Caouette, speaking in Victoria, said Canada was in a real pickle and something must be done to get the economy moving forward since "we are going backward because we are standing still."

National leader Robert Thompson, speaking in Vancouver, said if Canada became any more socialistic we will become a nation of look-alikes, think-alike Mortimer Snerds "manipulated by a vulgar ventriloquist government in which we are merely puppets."

NOTES TO YOU:

We thought we had a dandy other day when eagle-eyed colleague J. T. Jones pointed out a list of the call numbers of the various Saanich police patrol cars. The numbers start at 50 and more enough one was missing. But when we phoned to make sure a voice said: "Tell the wise guy that we have too got a Car 54—it's on school patrol." So there! . . . The Seattle world's fair has lured a whole army of budding song writers to the Pacific Northwest and they're just bursting to break out in musical tribute. One suggested in the title: "Meet Me At the Needle and We'll Get to the Point." Ouch! . . . The David R. Francis of the Christian Science Monitor who gave that excellent rundown on President Kennedy's relations with the U.S. business world on CBC television the other night is the same Dave Francis who was a Colonist reporter a few years ago.

HANDON HARVEST: Back in Scotland after a brief return "home" here is Capt. D. J. Froudford, one-time city Liberal M.L.A. "Cappy" may be missing the fun of the federal election campaign but when here he did mention the possibility that he would stand for the British House of Commons. . . . Esquimalt-Saanich Conservative George Chatterton opens his campaign shops at the Town and Country shop ping centre at 2 p.m. today and is looking forward to people dropping in for a "Chatt! . . . Sacred candidate in the city, James Audain, entered the election wars at Central Junior High the other night and all his friends began mispronouncing his name.

THE THINGS WE HEAR: On CFAX the other night the announced led off the news by stating: "Beave George Chatterton of Saanich announced today."

A few seconds later, just to show that it was not an accident, he said "the beave," etc. Wonder how Beave George Murphy feels about it?

GETTING TO KNOW YOU: National Social Credit leader Robert Thompson is apparently under no illusions that his name has become well-known. Mr. Thompson told Saanich federal candidates in Vancouver the other day: "You have to sell me and let them know who I am. I guarantee there's a minority of Social Creditors in B.C. who know very little about Bob Thompson."

THE CAMPAIGN TRAIL: Latest word is that Liberal leader Lester Pearson will make a return visit to Victoria May 31—two days after the scheduled visit of Prime Minister Diefenbaker. Mr. Pearson will be available for a joint meeting of the Victoria Rotary and Kiwanis clubs that day and also plans a bit of speech-making that night. . . . Three B.C. cabinet ministers will hit the cross-Canada election trail in an attempt to boost Social Credit's "on-to-Ottawa" campaign in the coming few weeks. The team will consist of Attorney-General Robert Hunter, Highway Minister Phil Gagliardi and Education and Labor Minister Leslie Peterson. Also planning a campaign East is Premier Bennett. . . . Esquimalt-Saanich NDP candidate Geoff Mitchell feels more success will come from house-to-house calls than by making speeches to the party faithful who are usually "way in the majority at meetings."

INSTANT ITEM: If you have both feet on the ground you don't have far to fall.

Fishboat's Test Run Real Trial for Youth

Test run of a converted fishboat became a real trial for a young Victorian last evening. Philip Williams, about 20, who gave his address as 1445 Edgewater, went out alone from the Johnson Street dock during the afternoon to try out the 20-foot cabin craft Coo.

SHORTED OUT

Off Poul Bay his magnetos shorted out and the boat went dead about 6 p.m.

For 90 minutes Williams tried to get the Coo moving again, twice trying in vain to paddle the boat against the east-sweeping tide.

Watchers on shore saw his difficulties, and as daylight faded with the Coo still drifting, several telephoned Oak Bay police to alert them.

In turn, B.C. Pilotage, RCMP and Search and Rescue in Vancouver were notified, as the Coo drifted closer to Mowat Reef between Trial Island and Victoria Golf Club.

Pilotage Boat 21, skippered by Capt. William Napier, took the Coo in tow and returned her to the Pilotage dock at Ogden Point.

Smart Imports Shown at Birthday Party

W. and J. Wilson's "100 Wonderful Years" were celebrated twice over yesterday in the Empress Hotel.

First with a fashion show of sure elegance in the Crystal Ballroom — then with sherry and a birthday cake in the Georgian Lounge.

Mrs. Kathy Williams, head fashion buyer for the firm who has just returned from a trip through Europe, was commentator and co-ordinator of the show.

The stage in the ballroom was a mass of hydrangeas blooms, the models' ramp was carpeted in red and draped with gold ropes. Dramatic background was a Victoria Street scene from a century ago — the view from W. & J. Wilson's across Government Street.

STUNNING

The show itself was a stunning combination of simplicity and sophistication. Imports from Italy, France, Switzerland, Austria and Great Britain demonstrated the tremendous use of knits from countries that know how to fashion them to exquisite taste.

No longer are knits just wool, but cotton, raffia, silk and a variety of suades and other fabrics, even leather.

EXOTIC JEWELRY

The two and three-piece dresses headlined the show, along with exotic jewelry from Europe and Asia, and big linen bags from Italy. The Chanel line was apparent in most jackets and the "A" line in most coats.

Many imports were specially down to Wilsons for their birthday and famous names from the Continent were on every label.

Fair-haired Jan Joslin modeled one of the many beautiful costumes from Italy. This one was a sparkling white two-piece sweater dress, the top appliqued with strawberries and green leaves. With it, she wore red velvet "Jackie Kennedy" brow band.

The bright black and white check suit, modelled by Jo Aiken, features the matchbox jacket with soft tie at the neckline. The overblouse was a vivid green.

Liberty of London made this fresh lawn pink and grey print with shoe string sleeves and matching stole, banded in pink.

A striking Austrian two-piece dress by Marvienne was classically cut and heavily embellished around the collar and down the front in multi-colored autumn leaves, all the exquisite workmanship done by hand. Background was beige.

Another Marvienne costume was a three-piece black knit, the jacket worked in braid and leather, wool and felt and brilliant with gold sequins.

Helen Bernes showed an important white cotton knit, a slim sheath under the silk-lined Chanel jacket. She wore French crystal beads.

Another green knit dress had a matching sweater-jacket bordered in embroidered roses, and was worn with jewelry in jade from Hong Kong.

Several fresh and lovely Liberty silk dresses drew comment. One in green and white, had a green coat with the lining matching the dress. Another Liberty print in tangerine was hand tucked and worn with a jeweled cardigan from Hong Kong.

Very French was a sheath of glittering black worn with long black gloves and crystal earrings.

The European cape was introduced with a flourish by model Doris Blanche. In black and curry loden cloth, it was almost a complete circle, and very effective with black slim trousers.

Models were Helen Bernes, Jan Joslin, Janet Pew, Jo Aiken, Oli Roman, Reryl Davidson, Doris Blanche and young Maureen and John Dowling.

Following the show Mr. Robert Thompson, managing director and vice-president of Wilson's, introduced members of his staff. Mrs. Kathy Williams, Mrs. Erica Winkelman, Mrs. Marlene Sexsmith, Ivy

Smith, Audrey Harrison and Mrs. Helen Henderson.

Mr. Alan Wilson, great-grandson of the founder of Wilson's who originally arrived in Victoria via Cape Horn, cut the birthday cake at the reception in the Georgian Lounge. Present was his father, Mr. Harold Wilson, a board member of the firm. President of Wilson's, Mr. W. R. Clark addressed the gathering and said, celebrating Wilson's 100th birthday was probably the closest he would come to being one hundred.

Here's some further help for Mrs. J. B. whose whole load of laundry was invaded by an errant lipstick, sent by some of our neighborly readers — One lady writes—rub the spots with vaseline or lard then sponge with clearing fluid and Bunder and the lipstick stains will disappear from wool any material. Another writes — soak whites in strong vinegar, colored materials in equal parts vinegar and water, then launder as usual.

We hope, Mrs. J. B., with these helpful hints most of the ill-fated items in your wash will be wearable once again. Our sincere thanks to Anna J. Mrs. M.A., Mrs. Mack, Mrs. L. G. and "Lipstuck" for their kindness in coming to our aid.

Attractive Outfits Modelled at Show

Petite Sherry Parrot, in a smart full black gingham and red flower print skirt and matching red overblouse, modelled one of the outstanding outfits in yesterday's fashion show and spring tea held at Lansdowne Junior High School.

The show, sponsored by the parents' auxiliary, was opened by Mrs. John Gough, wife of the district superintendent of schools. The Grade 8 and 9 students who were modelling the very successful products of many hours sewing in class, were under the direction of teachers Mrs. A. E. Millhouse and Mrs. P. Mason.

Grade 8 student Pat Kilmer was commentator for her class. A pink cotton belted overblouse and gathered pink print skirt, complemented with matching beads, was chosen by Julie Forrest to make her gay summer ensemble.

Dark-haired Jackie Coombes modelled a striking deep turquoise blouse and green and turquoise skirt. She carried a perky little top of the print to be worn with shorts. Of interest in Janice Leach's outfit was the Indian woven plaid fabric. She complemented the mauve in the skirt with a mauve overblouse enhanced with white trim.

Blonde Lorraine Speck was commentator for the modelling of the Grade 9 girls' dresses.

Although all these dresses cost under $10, attractive outfits such as the pale blue sashed dress and matching jacket worn by Doris Hicks will serve for many dressy occasions throughout the holidays. Many of the girls chose sleeveless jumpers with matching short-sleeved blouses.

Evelyn Edwards was pretty in her pink linen sheath which featured an elasticated waist and self-belt. The yoke of the bodice was trimmed with large pink buttons.

Entertainment was presented by Scottish dancers Margaret Knight and Angus McKenzie, Pacific Northwest champion. Pat Halsey did a graceful Hawaiian dance and Pam Roberts and Dave Sargison sang.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I'll make it brief and to the point. I'm no child. I'm 34. Recently I married a man I'd known only a short time. I was shocked to find that he has the American flag tattooed on his chest. Also, the slogan "Down with Tojo."

He said it happened when he was stationed in Japan with the U.S. Air Force. He went out one night with a gang of fellows and they got roaring drunk and had themselves decorated.

I consider tattoo work vulgar and cheap and I'd like to know if there is any way it can be removed. He says he'd be willing to have it taken off if I can get the information. Thank you.—PROVIDENCE.

Dear Providence: Tattoo "decorations" can be removed. Tell your husband to take Tojo and Old Glory to a dermatologist. There are several removal techniques and a skin specialist will decide which is best for him.

Dear Ann Landers: We've been married for 20 years. Our children are 14, 15, 17 and 19 years of age. None of them shows more than a casual interest in the opposite sex. The three older ones have had a few dates, but the combined number is less than a dozen.

For the past 12 or 14 years my husband's attitude toward sex is that he can take it or leave it alone. He considers sex a bore and would just as soon not be bothered.

I am a warm and affectionate woman but I'm certainly not going to cheapen myself by begging for his attention.

Is it possible that our children have inherited their father's lack of interest in the opposite sex? I would appreciate a reply in the paper, where he can read it.—FROZEN OUT.

Dear Out: An interest, or a lack of interest, is not "inheritable." Children are influenced by attitudes in the home, however, and if your husband is the deep-freeze type his children may well be imitating him.

On the other hand, if you are such a warm and loving type (your letter doesn't show it) your warmth long since should have thawed out the whole family, including the iceberg who calls himself a husband.

Prince's Adviser Says

Life in Monaco Most Delightful

By DOROTHY WROTONOWSKI

Monaco—the very name conjures up a picture of blue skies, a blue sea and a fairy tale princess living in a palace atop a hill. A little dream world all on its own.

But what is it really like? Mr. and Mrs. Martin A. Dale who have lived in Monaco for the past two years are both agreed that it is a most delightful place.

The Dales with their two sons, Charles, aged four years, and Gregory, two, live in an apartment overlooking the Bay of Monaco where the water is "so blue you can hardly believe it."

At present Mr. and Mrs. Dale with their sons are spending a month's holiday in Victoria and are staying with Mrs. Dale's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Clements, 679 Island Road.

GRANDPARENTS

Both Charles and Gregory have seen their grandparents before in such places as Nice and Washington, D.C. but this is the first time they have both been to visit them here. And every day they are getting to know each other better.

Mr. Dale knew Prince Rainier of Monaco personally before he took over the post of the prince's private counsellor and economic adviser.

DISCRETION

"There are no indiscreet questions from members of the press but there are indiscreet answers," says Mr. Dale, a statement that immediately, you could say, endears him to any member of the aforesaid group.

Questioned about the present French tax proposals for Monaco, Mr. Dale said that it was the sort of problem that had so many complications that any brief reference that he could make would be bound to be misleading.

Most discreet. Agreed.

Mrs. Dale, the former Joan Clements, was studying at the Sorbonne on a scholarship when she met her future husband. They have lived in Strasbourg, where they were married, Paris and Marseilles before going to Monaco.

Spring Salmon Back at Last With Big Block

At last the salmon are being caught in sufficient numbers to make a good showing in King Fisherman entries.

Big block of entries in the spring salmon category comes from Finlayson Arm end of Saanich Inlet and, although the entries record salmon caught since the contest opened April 28, most were caught during a hot period which started last weekend, with Tony Rosin, last year's champion inlet fisherman in point of numbers of big fish, topping the list with a 17.2-pounder Sunday.

EARLY THE BEST

Early mornings and evenings have been the best, with short lines and a variety of weights doing the trick.

A couple of springs have been weighed in from the top end of the inlet from McKenzie Bay, and Tod Inlet, but the best chance of getting a real heavyweight still appears to be in the Sooke and Victoria waterfront waters.

HARRIS CREEK

Stan Brown, 451 Milton, Nanaimo, a Colonist subscriber, has taken a good lead in the bass division with a 5.0-pounder from Spider Lake. Stepping into the river trout lead is Colonist subscriber Harry A. Talbot, 1390 Harrop, with a 13.10-pound steelhead—from Harris Creek.

Merchants Warned Of Stolen Cheques

Greater Victoria merchants have been warned by police to look out for stolen cheques.

At least four of the stolen cheques, printed for Rest Haven Hospital in Vancouver, have been forged in amounts ranging from $95 to $108 and cashed in stores here.

A photocopied machine was used to prepare the cheques for passing, and police are looking for a woman and two men who cashed the cheques here.

The cheques were stolen in Vancouver.

Four Men Sentenced For Sooke Break-In

Four of the six men charged earlier in connection with a break-in and robbery at Gibson's Shopping Centre, Sooke, have been sentenced in magistrate's court in Sooke.

Turnbull, admitted breaking into the centre and stealing three radios, a record player, some clothing and 10 cartons of cigarettes, has been remanded to May 15 for sentence.

On that day, Raymond Peter Sweeney, 18, of Glen Lake, will appear in court so that a trial date may be set concerning the same offence. He has pleaded not guilty to the charge.

High Winds Hit Seeding

OTTAWA (CP)—Seeding progresses on the southern Prairies but little has been done elsewhere and many farmers await better germinating conditions and satisfactory weed kills, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported yesterday.

Weather generally has been cool and rainfall limited. Surface moisture on average is sufficient to sprout grain kernels, said the report, but recent high winds have caused rapid drying.

Soil drifting has occurred widely although damage is limited to localized areas.

Growth of pastures and forage crops is slow, causing concern among livestock producers who already face depleted feed reserves.

It said weed - growth killing and cool weather has delayed Manitoba seeding, although 60 per cent is completed in the southwest.

Little seeding is reported done in the Red River Valley.

Island Jury Show Not As Impressive

By IAN D. D. UTHOFF

The plan of allowing only one entry in each of the three sections of the Vancouver Island annual jury show has made, in my opinion, a less impressive show than usual.

There are naturally fewer oils and the graphics section has become much more important. There are only a few entries in the sculpture group.

The two main awards go to the painters, first prize to Brian Travers-Smith for his watercolor Spring Rain, Saanich. This is a cleanly handled painting, limpid, in good watercolor technique.

Second prize winner, Donald Harvey's Tree Form, an oil of distinction, is a well-organized abstraction with fine control of color.

It is interesting to note that the jury, consisting of Miss Grace Melvin, former head of the design department of the Vancouver School of Art; Edward B. Thomas, assistant director of the Seattle Art Museum; and Sam Black, painter and lecturer at the University of British Columbia, appeared to emphasize the importance of good technique when selecting the prize winners.

This also applies to some extent to the eight honorable mentions. Flemming Jorgensen heads the list with two entries, a strongly painted oil entitled Denmark and a charcoal study, Seated Model.

Then comes Virginia Lewis' Drawing; Bessie Snider's silk screen print The Age of Elegance; Nora Lewis' Monotype; and Gladys Boas' painting of an orange in a stage of decomposition.

Cyril Connorton, though a well-established illustrator, has not until within the last two years taken part in any of the gallery's annual exhibitions. He has developed recently a strongly styled technique which makes his work unmistakable in the black and white field.

Undoubtedly the judging has been different this year. Size and a prevailing style have not been of primary importance. The leaning has been to simpler things more sincerely felt and painted.

Other items of this jury show will be discussed at a later date.

100 to Greet Borge

Colorful Welcome Planned at Airport

Danish pianist Victor Borge will feel right at home when he arrives here Sunday. He is scheduled to arrive at Patricia Bay Airport at 1.35 p.m. on Trans-Canada Air Lines flight 105.

Waiting to greet him at the airport will be about 100 persons, some wearing traditional Scandinavian costumes. The welcome party will include members of the Scandinavian Brotherhood, the Sons of Norway and the Danish-Canadian (Vikings) Association.

DINNER PLANNED

The Vikings will hold a reception and smorgasbord dinner in honor of Mr. Borge at the Carlton Club, 916 Esquimalt Road, at 7 p.m. Sunday. Mr. Borge will perform in the Esquimalt Arena Monday night under the auspices of the Victoria Symphony Society. The symphony orchestra will perform from 8 to 8.30 p.m. to Mr. Borge's appearance.

GREAT FEAT

Acclaimed everywhere in a regular rain of superlatives, it is likely Mr. Borge's highest recommendation came from the Daily Mail in London. "Borge brought off the considerable feat of living up to his American reviews," it said dryly.

Mr. Borge was an accomplished pianist at 14 and a first rate comedian in his early 20s.

Garden Notes

Prune for a Reason

By N. V. CHESNUT, FRES

Quite a few of the letters reaching my desk this past week or so have been from home gardeners dissatisfied with the performance of their spring-flowering shrubs. In almost every letter, these owners want to know if hard pruning will correct the non-flowering habit of their shrubs.

Pruning is no cure-all for failure to bloom. In fact, most shrubs will blossom all the more readily if they are never pruned at all, except for the removal of dead wood and the thinning out of weak and over-crowded growth.

It is often necessary to prune for special reasons, though. To keep a shrub shapely and of a suitable size, or to make it fit in harmoniously with other occupants of the shrub border. Generally speaking, the time to do this pruning and shaping is immediately after the normal flowering period.

The shrubs which benefit the most from hard pruning are the biennials (Cytisus and Genista), the mock orange (Philadelphus) and Deutzia. These should have the shoots which have borne blossoms cut back to within three buds of their base. Be careful, though, not to cut back into old wood or you will get no flowers next year.

The shrub with the many names—Japonica, alias Cydonia, alias Flowering Quince, alias Chaenomeles—will benefit if the flowered shoots are cut back by one-third. This is the correct treatment, too, for Weigela, Kerria Japonica, and the spring-flowering Spiraea.

Rhododendrons and azaleas need no more attention than the pinching out of the spent blossom trusses before they can set seed. If the plants are young, it is all right to cut back the tips of some of the longer shoots to keep the shrub shapely and to induce the formation of side shoots.

Old and overgrown rhododendrons can be pruned back hard into old wood, and it is best to take out whole branches, making a flush cut at the point of origin. Shortening the shoots on a congested and overgrown specimen would make it bushier than ever.

After lilacs have bloomed, the flower heads should be cut out before they can set seed. Quite apart from the unsightliness of the brown seed pods, seed bearing has a terribly exhausting effect upon the bush. Weak and poorly placed branches should be taken off in their entirety, and any suckers exposed cut off flush with the roots.

Forsythia is a touchy subject to prune, for if you cut it back too severely it goes into a fit of the shivers and will produce no flowers at all next year. New growth which has borne blossoms this year may be shortened to within six inches of the old wood, and it is a good idea to take out one or two of the oldest main stems every year.

As with the Forsythia, it is beneficial to the Flowering Currant to cut out about one-third of the oldest stems every year. This encourages young, vigorous shoots to spring up from low down on the shrub, and these will blossom profusely in future years. If this program is followed consistently, no part of the shrub will ever be older than three years old.

Don't forget that my printed leaflet on the pruning of ornamental shrubs is yours for the asking, on receipt of a stamped and self-addressed envelope. This tells you when and how to prune all the ornamental shrubs and small trees ordinarily grown in our part of the world.

France Is Not de Gaulle

PARIS—We keep having these dreamlike visions of glory and they always seem to take the form of interviews with some great world figure. The last dream we had was with Gen. de Gaulle.

De Gaulle: Mon vieux, it's wonderful to meet you at long last. I don't agree with everything you write, but I certainly read you.

Mr. B: Merci, Monsieur le President. De Gaulle: Please call me Charles. You know I hate to stand on ceremony.

Mr. B: Merci, Monsieur Charles. Cher ami, the people in France seem to be very happy that you managed to get a ceasefire in Algeria.

De Gaulle: It was nothing. Any one could have done it. I don't believe one man can control any events. Things just happen, and in this case I was lucky.

Mr. B: But everyone says if it hadn't been for you there would never have been a ceasefire.

De Gaulle: People exaggerate. If anything, it was the French politicians of all the parties who helped me. Without them or parliament I could never have accomplished anything. Frankly, I've always preferred to play a role in the background. I think it's a mistake for someone like myself to do anything without the will of the people.

Mr. B: Some people, though, feel you have too much power.

De Gaulle: It is a justified criticism. I don't want any powers. I don't need any powers. The French people know what is good for them without my telling them. I believe if France ever hopes to become a great nation we must have a strong parliament and a weak executive. This is what I've working for.

Mr. B: I would like to move on to international affairs. How do you see France's position vis-a-vis the rest of the world?

De Gaulle: France is just a small, insignificant country which must play no role in influencing international events. We first must put our trust in the United Nations, and then in such great world leaders as President Kennedy and Prime Minister Macmillan. They know much more about world affairs than I do. I feel we should go along with them on every thing rather than risk breaking up the alliance. I would be a very selfish person indeed if I said France comes first.

Mr. B: Then you are for complete European integration?

De Gaulle: Exactly. Of course, this means a certain amount of concessions on France's part, but I see no reason why we shouldn't bow to the wishes of other countries if they feel we are wrong.

Mr. B: Now, the question of the bomb.

De Gaulle: Ah, yes. In all honesty, I wouldn't mind having a nuclear bomb, but I don't see the real value of having one, particularly if it means testing in the atmosphere. As much as France would like to become a member of the nuclear club, I would much prefer using the money for social welfare and salary increases for the French worker.

Mr. B: There is also the question of Monaco.

De Gaulle: Alas, I must admit to making a mistake. Prince Rainier was right in kicking out my representative if he didn't agree with him. After all, Monaco is a sovereign nation, and what they do there should not be any concern of France's.

Mr. B: Whom would you like to succeed you as president?

De Gaulle: There are many good men in France, any of whom could do the job. I don't believe any country should depend on one man alone. After all, France is not de Gaulle and de Gaulle is not France.

LET'S TALK

By Rudolf Fleisch

I am a very amateurish photographer and naturally was interested in the new revision of The Amateur Photographer's Handbook by Aaron Sussman (Crowell). It's the outstanding book in the field and has all the information anyone could want to take better pictures.

The heart of the book is a chapter called simply The Picture.

Pictures, says Mr. Sussman, are all around us; the trouble is we don't see them. We go around without looking, unaware of the beauty that surrounds us everywhere.

He begins his chapter with a story about Peary's cook. It seems that a newspaper friend of his got a tipoff he should go and see a man who'd been with Peary at the North Pole and had gone through all of Peary's tremendous Arctic adventures, cooking for his crew. There was an unimpaired, great story if there ever was one.

Just Cooking

So the newspaperman found and interviewed Peary's cook. Sure enough, he'd been at the Pole. What's more, he'd even kept meticulous day-by-day notes. But the disappointment was that his notes and his meager deal with cooking only. On the day Peary and his men discovered the Pole, his notes showed that they ate "so many pounds of this and so many pounds of that." And that was all. The cook had been present at one of the most dramatic scenes of world history but had seen nothing in the same way we live our life concentrating on our jobs, families, and immediate affairs, seeing nothing of what goes on. Mr. Sussman's chapter is illustrated with a series of breathtaking, amateur pictures of the kind anyone could take any day—a close-up of fingers threading a needle, the pattern of light and shadow on a snow-covered stairway, the sun lighting up the side of an old, unpainted barn.

At Jones Beach

Once Mr. Sussman went with a friend to Jones Beach. They were talking about pictures and the friend said there was absolutely nothing there worth photographing. So Sussman bet him he would spot five good pictures within 25 feet of where they sat. He did. They're reproduced in the book—beautiful, haunting, arresting patterns of sand, sky and sea.

LONDON (NANA)—Veteran star Clio Brooks, 70, more than 70 years of age—will come out of retirement to play one of the leading roles in Bleak House, from the Agatha Christie movie version of what I think is the best of Dickens' novels... and that hilarious old gal, Margaret Rutherford—a big hit in Murder, She Wrote—will play the addled Miss Flyte who in Bleak House haunts the law courts waiting for her suit to be heard and, by the time it comes up, the money she is seeking has all been dissipated in legal fees. This movie is a special project of Metro's London chief of production, Larry Buchanan, who told me that between 69 and 90 American movies will be made in Europe this year.

The best show in London now, for my money, is Sheridan's School for Scandal, with Sir Ralph Richardson as a wonderful Sir Peter Teazle, and Margaret Rutherford as a wonderful Mrs. Peter Teazle, and Margaret Rutherford as a wonderful Mrs. Peter Teazle, and Margaret Rutherford as a wonderful Mrs. Peter Teazle.

The Children's Hour in France is titled The Loudest Whisper. The French press praised the actors—Audrey Hepburn, Shirley MacLaine and James Garner—but were disappointed with the direction of William Wyler. I disagree. It was the script at fault.

Grace Kelly's High Society is in re-release in London. Some friends of mine who saw it found the acting of Her Grace quite wooden by today's standards. Lee Remick, who you will best remember for his direction of The Guns of Navarone, has the same problem as Richard Burton. He is in love with actress Susan Sarandon, and cannot decide, he has stated in public, whether to leave his wife or give up Susan.

Forgers Cash In on Carelessness

Expert Shows How It's Done on $5 Stake

By WESSELY RICKS
Telegram News Service

To establish himself in business, a forger needs about five dollars in operating capital. That's all.

With the five dollars, he buys a pen, one of 14 different chemicals which can be purchased in any drug store and which will erase ink from safety paper, cheques and a pair of metal knitting needles he solders to a penny.

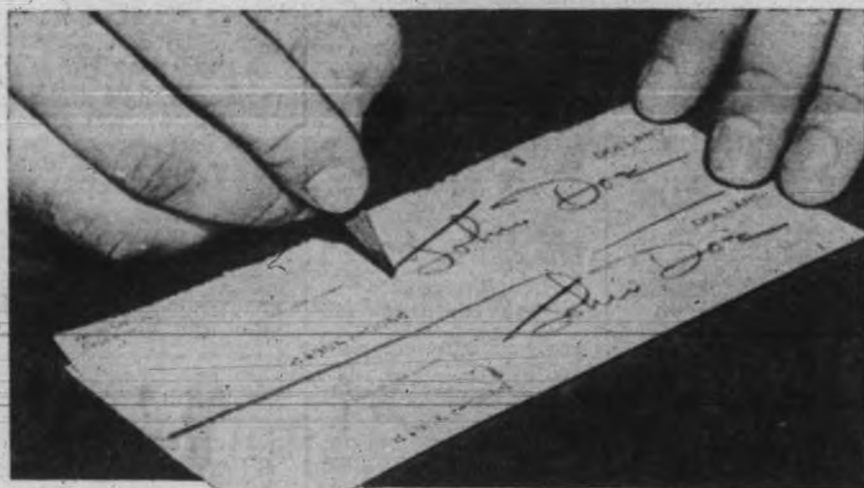

The returns could be hard some, even if he has to endure the inconvenience of picking up a blank cheque book.

In 1958, close to $12,000,000 was the take in forgeries in Canada. By 1960 the amount had swelled to $30,000,000, and in 1961, it had jumped to $50,000,000.

The risk, of course, is in being caught. A forger can win a vacation of up to 14 years in one of the federal penal institutions. But the penalty for passing a forged document is only three to six months.

The light sentence for passing a forged document protects the forger, who rarely peddles his own work of art. The man whose job it is to negotiate the product, and who is known as a "paperhanger," won't inform and risk the 14-year sentence by turning informer.

Recently, I talked with Robert Warner, a one-time sheriff's officer in the U.S. who is now the vice-president of a cheque-writing firm which sells cheque-writing and signing machines. For 14 years now Robert Warner, who is six-foot-four inches tall and weighs 308 pounds, has specialized in the techniques of the forger.

To demonstrate, he brought a book of blank cheques and a cheap ballpoint pen. Pushing a cheque across the table, he invited me to sign my name, and I scribbled "John Doe" across the line at the bottom.

Robert Warner turned the cheque upside down and placed a second blank—upside down, too—close to the signature. Then, backwards and upside down, he reproduced the signature so exactly that, if I hadn't marked the two cheques, I couldn't have identified my own "John Doe."

"That's the professional forger's technique," Robert Warner said. "He knows that there will always be slight variations in the way you sign your name, and that he doesn't have to reproduce your signature exactly. He draws a picture of your signature."

The second time I signed "John Doe" on a cheque with the cheap ballpoint pen, Robert Warner didn't bother drawing a picture of it. He breathed on his right hand to warm it, then pressed the palm of his hand heavily on the signature.

Then he quickly placed his hand flat on a blank cheque and leaned his weight on it. The writing transferred without the loss of a loop in a letter and as legibly as though it were the original.

"Suppose," Robert Warner was saying, "you're paying your telephone bill. Suppose the bill is for $32.40. You fill out your cheque, place it in an envelope and address it. 'But you're careless with the envelope. A forger gets it. Here's what he does, and you must remember that envelopes have spaces at the tops of the flaps so the air can escape when they're put through stamp-cancelling machines in the post office.' He took the envelope and, through the space at the tops of the flap, he inserted two metal knitting needles and dived to a penny. He trapped the cheque between the needles and started to roll the simple instrument. In seconds, the cheque was withdrawn from the unmarked envelope.

"The envelope is now dropped in the mail and goes on its way, so there's not much question of tampering with Her Majesty's mail," he said. "But watch what the forger does."

He reached in his pocket and produced what looked like a cheap lipstick holder.

"One of the erasing chemicals," he said. "It's odorless and easy to carry, and it leaves no stain on your fingers."

He dabbed a bit of the chemical on his finger. Then he rubbed it across the name of the utility on the cheque. It disappeared. The amount was scribbled away with a brush of the same finger.

"Now the forger has your cheque, nicely signed and with your account number on it," he said. "He'll fill it in himself and take it to your bank to be certified."

"He won't try to cash it at your bank. But once it's certified, it will be cashed by another bank without question. The crook may even have established a bank account of his own where the cheque will be readily accepted."

Forgers Cash In on Carelessness

Expert Shows How It's Done on $5 Stake

By WESSELY HICKS
Telegram News Service

To establish himself in business, a forger needs about five dollars in operating capital. That's all.

With the five dollars, he buys a pen, one of 14 different chemicals which can be purchased in any drug store and which will erase ink from safety paper checks and a pair of metal knitting needles he solders to a penny.

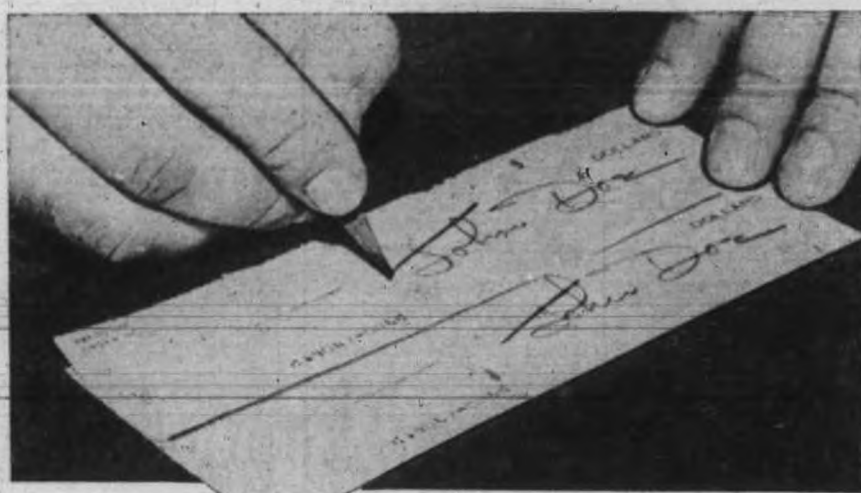

The returns could be handsome, even if he has to endure the inconvenience of picking up a blank cheque book.

In 1958, close to $12,000,000 was the take in forgeries in Canada. By 1960 the amount had swelled to $30,000,000, and in 1961, it had jumped to $50,000,000.

The risk, of course, is in being caught. A forger can win a vacation of up to 14 years in one of the federal penal institutions. But the penalty for passing a forged document is only three to six months.

The light sentence for passing a forged document protects the forger, who rarely peddles his own work of art. The man whose job it is to negotiate the product, and who is known as a "paperhanger," won't inform and risk the 14-year sentence by turning informer.

Recently, I talked with Robert Warner, a one-time sheriff's officer in the U.S. who is now the vice-president of a cheque-writing firm which sells cheque-writing, and signing machines. For 14 years now Robert Warner, who is six-foot-four inches tall and weighs 308 pounds, has specialized in the techniques of the forger.

To demonstrate, he brought a book of blank cheques and a cheap ballpoint pen. Pushing a cheque across the table, he invited me to sign my name, and I scribbled "John Doe" across the line at the bottom.

Robert Warner turned the cheque upside down and placed a second blank—upside down, too—close to the signature. Then, backwards and upside down, he reproduced the signature so exactly that, if I hadn't marked the two cheques, I couldn't have identified my own "John Doe."

"That's the professional forger's technique," Robert Warner said. "He knows that there will always be slight variations in the way you sign your name, and that he doesn't have to reproduce your signature exactly. He draws a picture of your signature."

The second time I signed "John Doe" on a cheque with the cheap ballpoint pen, Robert Warner didn't bother drawing a picture of it. He breathed on his right hand to warm it, then pressed the palm of his hand heavily on the signature.

Then he quickly placed his hand flat on a blank cheque and leaned his weight on it. The writing transferred without the loss of a loop in a letter and as legibly as though it were the original.

"But you're careless with the envelope. A forger gets it. Here's what he does, and you must remember that envelopes have spaces at the tops of the flaps so the air can escape when they're put through stamp-cancelling machines in the post office." He took the envelope and,

"The envelope is now dropped in the mail and goes on its way, so there's not much question of tampering with Her Majesty's mail," he said. "But watch what the forger does."

He reached in his pocket and produced what looked like a cheap lipstick holder.

"One of the erasing chemicals," he said. "It's odorless and easy to carry, and it leaves no stain on your fingers."

He dabbed a bit of the chemical on his finger. Then he rubbed it across the name of the utility on the cheque. It disappeared. The amount was spirited away with a brush of the same finger.

"Now the forger has your cheque, nicely signed and with your account number on it," he said. "He'll fill it in himself and take it to your bank to be certified."

through the space at the top of the flap, he inserted two metal knitting needles soldered to a penny. He trapped the cheque between the needles and started to roll the simple instrument. In seconds, the cheque was withdrawn from the unmarked envelope.

Bilker Draws Praise

VANCOUVER (CP) — A former credit-union executive who bilked his organization out of $3,900 was sentenced to 15 months in jail yesterday.

Glen Ramsden, 32, pleaded guilty last week to obtaining $2,100 from the British Ropes
Canadian factory credit union by passing a forged cheque.

He also admitted taking an additional $1,800 that he had failed to deposit in the credit union account.

In passing sentence, Magistrate Oscar Orr said he was highly impressed with Ramsden's ability to rise from a prison term ten years ago to a $9,300 a year job as a cost accountant.

"I should send you to the penitentiary, but I don't think I will because of your marvelous comeback in the past," Magistrate Orr told Ramsden. "But the fact is this was a breach

Parenthood Education Step Urged

TORONTO (CP) — The West
Toronto Presbytery of the United Church has asked the church's general council to petition Ottawa for a change in the Criminal Code to make legal the dissemination of information and devices for planned parenthood.

Rev. F. W. L. Brailey, of Carman Memorial Church, put the motion to the presbytery's monthly meeting Tuesday night. He said that the general council endorsed the principle of birth control clinics as long ago as 1936, but recognized that they would not be legal without Criminal Code amendments.

Inn Owner's Son Dies Three Others Flee Fire

DUNCAN—One son of the owner of the Cowichan Bay Inn died early Tuesday when flames destroyed two units of the inn. The wife and two small children of another son were rescued.

Denis McFay Campbell, 27, died despite heroic efforts by Lloyd Gudewill, an assistant fisheries inspector who occupied the adjoining unit.

MANAGED TO SAVE

However, Mr. Gudewill managed to save Mrs. Don Campbell and her two small children.

Inn owner Fred Campbell, his son Don and the victim's wife and six-year-old son were in Vancouver at the time.

Gar Robinson, chief of the Cowichan Bay volunteer fire brigade and a brother-in-law of the victim, said the cause probably will never be known but the fire could have started from a smouldering cigarette.

Mr. Gudewill said he was aroused by the burning smell shortly before midnight but was unable to enter the young man's room. It was already engulfed by flames.

He rushed to the apartment on the lower floor, led Mrs. Don Campbell and her children to safety and, after another unsuccessful attempt to rescue Denis Campbell, turned in the alarm.

He said the door to the victim's unit was locked. After breaking the glass and unlocking it from inside, he was driven back by the flames.

"It was like an inferno and I couldn't do anything to save him," he said.

LIKE BLOWTORCH

"When we arrived minutes after the blaze was discovered," said the chief, "flames roared out of the window like a blowtorch."

Hillcrest Camp At a Standstill

DUNCAN—Logging operations of the Hillcrest Lumber Co. at Mesachie Lake came to a complete standstill yesterday for the first time since the free bus dispute began Jan. 2.

Eighteen loggers who were not affected by the dispute since they live at Mesachie Lake did not report to work.

Neither Hillcrest spokesman Hector Stone nor IWA local president Weldon Jubenville could give any reason why the 18 did not go to work. Mr. Stone also was unable to say what the company's next move would be.

Seventy other employees still are refusing to work until the company reinstates the 20-year free bus service which was dropped Jan. 2 as an economy measure.

It took them daily to and from their homes in the Duncan and Lake Cowichan areas.

The other 18 stayed on the job until Tuesday when they asked for "a day off" following the company's hiring of a 10-man Victoria contract logging crew.

The company withdrew the contract crew later Tuesday "in order not to widen the breach" between the firm and the IWA.

Sources here said there were no definite plans for the 18 men to return.

The company has permission from the Labor Relations Board to sue Mr. Jubenville and the local in the matter, and the board also issued a "cease and desist" order against the IWA.

Mr. Jubenville said yesterday: "As far as the company suit is concerned, I've heard nothing about it yet."

Market Men Visiting Island

DUNCAN—A group of 35 delegates from European Common Market countries including Italy, France, Belgium, Germany and Holland is here for several days to inspect the lumber industry in the Cowichan Valley.

The delegates, guests of the provincial government, are studying methods and market conditions. Firms to be toured today are MacMillan and Powell at Chemainus, B.C. Forest Products in Youbou, Hillcrest at Mesachie Lake and Western Forest Industries on Honey-moon Bay.

In Port Alberni, six Common Market delegates from Holland arrived Wednesday morning for a two-day tour of forest

Port Alberni Smash

Freighter Hits Dock In Fog Bank Mishap

PORT ALBERNI—Damage is being assessed following collision of a 10,000-ton freighter with the end of the recently-extended dock at MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd.'s Alberni pulp and paper division.

The German ship Kersten Miles escaped unscathed from the encounter in which piling was twisted and a walkway smashed. The vessel, caught in a bank of fog as it was about to dock, plowed through the walkway at the wharf edge, cut a V-shaped notch in the dock and the bow was touching a shed when it came to a stop.

Start Soon On SPCA Shelter

Construction of a $30,000 SPCA animal shelter is slated to begin within 45 days.

An SPCA committee last night gave the nod to preliminary steps toward construction of the building which will be located on three lots on Burnside at Napier Lane.

Plans include heated cement floors, a quarantine section and a glassed-in viewing area that will prevent visitors from touching the animals.

Also included is a kitchen area for preparing food for the animals and a separate cat area. The shelter will accommodate more than 60 animals.

DUNCAN—A sports fisherman from Victoria, Richard Ely, found at Cowichan River in possession of eight rainbow trout less than eight inches in length, was fined $15 in police court yesterday. He pleaded guilty.

Peter G. Wylie of Victoria was fined $85 after he pleaded guilty to speeding.

New Democratic Party candidate for the Victoria riding in the federal election, Harold Fanthorpe, will start his campaign with a public meeting at Esquimalt Scout Hall on Fraser Street at 8 p.m. May 24.

Plans for a series of public meetings by Mr. Fanthorpe, a Victoria machine shop operator, were drawn up last night during a meeting of 15 members of his campaign committee.

FAIR BOOTH

The NDP will also have a booth in the Jaycee Fair, and will participate in a cavalcade to Port Alberni Tuesday night to hear a speech by T. C. Douglas, NDP national leader. A bus will leave the Douglas Street CCF Hall at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday for the Port Alberni meeting.

Tenants Accepted

Matson Lodge Opens Doors to 40

The Salvation Army has arranged for enough tenants to fill about one-third of its new Matson Lodge, which will be officially opened June 1.

Brig. Victor Underhill and Mrs. Underhill, who will be superintendents of the lodge, said yesterday they will send letters of acceptance later this week to "about 40" applicants, including some married couples.

The lodge will have accommodation for 140 persons, with 120 single rooms and 10 rooms for married couples.

Brig. and Mrs. Underhill have gone over a backlog of applications, interviewed the persons and brought their lists up to date.

They are ready to interview more people in their temporary office at 771 Pandora, telephone EV 6-6304. However, they strongly stressed that the lodge is not a nursing home.

The lodge's guests will be asked to pay $75 per month per person for accommodation, which includes room, food, linen, laundry and all the privileges of facilities in the building at 847 Dunsmuir.

Arrives May 19

Former Lord Mayor City Centennial Guest

Representing London, England, at a number of Victoria centennial events will be former Lord Mayor Sir Cullum Welch and Lady Welch, who will be here May 19 to 28 as guests of Mayor and Mrs. R. B. Wilson.

Sir Cullum will see the centennial parade, attend a civic luncheon, have dinner at Government House and attend a provincial government dinner in his honor besides making official visits to Premier Bennett and city hall.

He will address the Canadian Club, attend the presentation by Governor General Vanier of the Queen's Color to Royal Roads cadets and witness events connected with the Swiftsure yacht race.

During his stay Sir Cullum will also motor up Island and visit a friend at Duncan.

Explorers Explore For World's Cash

TORONTO (CP)—The man who has climbed higher than anyone and the man who has sunk lower than anyone found they have one problem in common—lack of money.

Sir Edmund Hillary, conqueror of Mount Everest, and Jacques Piccard, who explored the deepest part of the Pacific Ocean, met Tuesday in Toronto for the first time.

Both said they regret spending much of their time raising money for expeditions.

"There's never enough money," said Mr. Piccard.

Both are travelling the world to collect funds to enable them to continue their dangerous occupations. They were in Toronto for a television appearance.

Heathman Faces Locked Doors

CHARLES HEATHMAN

VANCOUVER (CP)—Charles Heathman, who told a Vancouver newspaper April 21 he killed a 10-year-old boy, Wednesday was committed to a mental institution for an indefinite term.

Magistrate James Bartman said he hoped that Heathman, 38, would receive treatment that would help restore him to a normal life.

Magistrate Bartman said Heathman's case would be reviewed from time to time before any decision was made on his release.

Soul-Searching

The magistrate said he had "lain awake at night searching his soul" in considering his verdict, but on the evidence before him he could make no other choice.

"We ought to show restraint and forbearance," the magistrate said in preamble. "Only God knows what's in this man's heart. Let us be dignified and charitable to him and all concerned."

Heathman was twice sentenced to be hanged for the suffocation murder of 10-year-old Donald Otley in Vernon, B.C. Labor Day, 1960. He was later freed by the B.C. Court of Appeal.

Held in Seattle

Under the law of double jeopardy a man finally acquitted of a charge after due process of law, cannot be tried again on the same charge.

It was under a Mental Hospitals Act warrant that Heathman was sought immediately after the Sun confession was made. He was arrested in Seattle April 23.

Heathman told Magistrate Bartman Wednesday his story told to Sun city editor Jack Books and reporter Simma Holt was not true, and that he was drunk when he spoke to them in a long session Good Friday.

Oak Bay Cuts Rate!

By JACK FRY

Oak Bay council yesterday reduced its tax levy one-half mill below the 1961 level by holding its 1962 budget within $112,338 of last year's budget.

It was the only municipality in Greater Victoria which has a lower mill rate than last year.

RATE OF 60.3
The 1962 total mill rate is 40% compared with 41 last year. The tax for general operation and debt purposes is down to 22% mills from 23 mills in 1961. Schools are 18 mills, the same as they were last year.

Taxes will be "up slightly" for those who had an upward revision during last year's re-assessment of land and improvements. They will be down

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—A Brazilian airliner with 27 persons aboard crashed and exploded while making a landing approach in rain at Vitoria airport last night. There were three survivors.

Police at Vitoria, 250 miles north of here, reported the plane burst into flames as it was making the approach.

Daylight At Dusk

B.C. Hits Low

Climate 'Poor' For Capital

VANCOUVER (CP)—An independent economic report says British Columbia has a poor investment climate and the inflow of private capital to the province last year hit a six-year low.

W. B. Haughan, president of Grosvenor-Laing (B.C.) Ltd., says in an introductory review of a 150-page report called "Real Estate and Business Trends, 1962," published by technical experts of the Vancouver Real Estate Board:

Government spending is no substitute for private capital inflow.

The slowing of capital investment last year slowed establishment of secondary and manufacturing industry vital to a healthy economy.

Total capital investment in B.C. for all sectors during 1961 was $1,200,000,000—$150 million less than in 1960.

'More Jobs, Trade If Tories Return'

Grits Play On Jobless Says Fleming

WALKERTON, Ont. (CP)—Finance Minister Fleming said Wednesday night the Liberal party is not as happy as it was when unemployment was increasing.

"They have tried to make a political football of unemployment, and that is the sum total of their contribution to the solution of the problem."

CLINTON, Ont. (CP)—An annual increase of 250,000 jobs under a Progressive Conservative government was forecast Wednesday night by Trade Minister Hees.

Mr. Hees, speaking at the nomination convention for Huron riding, also said the export trade will continue to expand and that there will be an export surplus on merchandise trade of $400,000,000 this year.

L. Elston Cardiff, 73, member for Huron for 22 years, was named unanimously to contest the riding in the federal election.

No Matter How You Slice It...

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A Federal Trade Commission hearing examiner yesterday ordered National Bakers, Services, Inc., to stop claiming "Hollywood bread" would help people lose weight.

The examiner's order, not a final decision, said the bread contains just as many calories per pound as other breads, but is sliced thinner.

Meat Scandal Draws Cries For Inspection

By Colonist Staff Writer

Greater Victoria medical health officer Dr. J. L. Whitbread said last night he will consult city officials today to see if legal action can be launched against a butcher shop accused of selling diseased meat.

His latest statement came a day after he told reporters that sale of such meat did not constitute a breach of existing law.

But up until last night City Solicitor T. P. O'Grady said he had not been consulted on the case and could not say offhand whether or not prosecution is possible.

He recalled a section of one city bylaw which forbids sale of diseased meat on pain of a $50 fine.

Dr. Whitbread again refused to name the butcher shop where a metropolitan health board inspector said he confiscated seven pounds of abscess-riddled beef liver and learned a further 10 pounds of liver from the same beast had been sold to customers.

The public health chief said so far as he knows the health department could take no legal action even if a Greater Victoria resident died as the result of eating diseased meat. An official of the attorney general's department doubted that criminal action would be advisable in such a case but added that a civil action for damages could be launched.

"There is a high degree of civil liability on a butcher," the official said.

If the 17 pounds of infected liver did nothing else (up to press time there were still no reports of ill-effects from its unknown consumers), it sparked these moves:

With rare unanimity the heads of the four Greater Victoria municipalities called for compulsory meat inspection.

Agriculture Minister Frank Richter said he will ask for early action on his request to municipal officials for a ruling on whether or not the B.C. Municipal Act forbids municipalities from passing their own meat inspection by-laws.

Liver Sales Drop

Consumers in six of 11 independent Greater Victoria butcher shops showed a marked disinclination for liver. (One butcher said liver sales at his store dropped from a normal 20 pounds to two pounds overnight.)

Seven of 10 independent butchers thought that the metropolitan health board should have disclosed the name of the shop in which the tainted meat was found.

Council of Women president Mrs. H. L. MacKenzie said meat inspection will be on the agenda of the next general meeting on Monday.

A sample of the abscessed liver was delivered to Royal Jubilee Hospital for bacteriological and pathological examination to determine the nature of the infection.

One time meat inspection foe Al. Geoffrey Edgewood said he was shocked by the case and reversed his stand of Jan. 8 this year when he referred to meat inspection as just another burden on taxpayers.

Inspection Area

Mr. Richter expressed concern at the Victoria situation and advocated establishment of a meat inspection area under terms of the B.C. Meat Inspection Act.

Free enterprise must take the first step by building a custom slaughterhouse at a minimum cost of about $30,000. The agriculture minister said he believes this is no problem and local health authorities say two groups are interested in providing such facilities.

When a proper abattoir is built Mr. Richter's department would declare the southern end of the island a meat inspection area and no uninspected meat could be sold except by a producer directly to a consumer.

The province would support an application from the abattoir to the federal government for federal inspection services. Mr. Richter anticipates no trouble in obtaining federal inspection.

Federal inspection might actually help local meat producers, he agreed, because it would qualify them to sell to certain large food chains which insist on federal approval of their meat.

Local producers who wanted to sell for resale in the inspection area would have to have their stock slaughtered at a custom abattoir and would pay a nominal charge ($50 cents a head for beef) for inspection. The producer would then be free to sell the meat to whom ever he wished.

Mavor R. B. Wilson yesterday led the municipal campaign for the meat inspection drive.

He termed sale of the offending liver "an extremely serious matter."

Saanich Reeve Stanley Murphy said he was surprised to learn that public health authorities did not have meat supplies under close scrutiny already. He said meat inspection must come but that producers must be free to sell where they please and not be captive suppliers to a slaughterhouse.

Oak Bay Reeve George Murdoch was critical of the Greater Victoria health officer's statement.

Did Blasts Betray Lusitania Cargo?

LONDON (AP)—An American ship diver who plunged 300 feet to the wreck of the Lusitania has uncovered indications the Germans may have been right in saying the liner carried munitions when they sank her 71 years ago.

The famous British passenger ship went to the bottom of the Atlantic May 7, 1915, 20 minutes after being struck by a German torpedo. Of the 1,950 persons on board, 1,198 died.

Among the drowned were nearly 200 Americans and the sinking, as much as any other single event, set the mood for U.S. entry two years later into the First World War.

The Germans claimed they were justified in treating the Lusitania as a ship of war because she was carrying munitions and may have been armed.

In an attempt to clear up the mystery, 23-year-old John Light of Elmhurst, N.Y., led a team of divers to investigate the wreck 10 miles off the south coast of Ireland.

Underwater pictures by his expedition were shown on British television Tuesday night.

Light's findings led him to believe the wreck of the Lusitania has been tampered with. A section of steel deck appears to have been cut away with torches.

Only one other expedition as far as is known has ever been down to the wreck. This was a private venture in 1933.

There is no dispute that the ship was designed to carry guns. The British claim, however, it was unarmed when torpedoed. Light found no gun on the foredeck as shown in the ship's plans.

Said BBC television producer Maurice Harvey, who worked with Light on the subject: "The evidence seems to indicate the wreck has been tampered with. Light believes British admiralty divers have been down to remove the ship's guns."

There is more evidence that the Lusitania was carrying ammunition. The ship's manifest, said Harvey, showed the cargo included 4,000 cases of small arms ammunition.

At least one survivor remembered hearing three explosions. The log of the German submarine U-20 states that it fired only one torpedo and that the detonation was followed by a larger, internal explosion.

"Everything suggests an explosion on the side away from the torpedo," said BBC commentator Patrick Troughton.

When a proper abattoir is built Mr. Richter's department would declare the southern end of the island a meat inspection area and no uninspected meat could be sold except by a producer directly to a consumer.

The province would support an application from the abattoir to the federal government for federal inspection services. Mr. Richter anticipates no trouble in obtaining federal inspection.

IT BEATS ME

By Jim Tang

General-manager Frank Selke and Senator Molson, club president, are currently in Vancouver, leaving little doubt but that Montreal Canadiens are quite serious in becoming connected with Vancouver's Western Hockey League operation.

And they're not unopposed. New York Rangers have announced they plan to keep their connection in Vancouver and may back ex-mayor Fred Hume when the real bidding starts to purchase the franchise from the Pacific National Exhibition.

Also in the picture, but well in the background, is Harry Ornest, who can allegedly get player support from the Toronto Maple Leafs if he can get the Vancouver franchise. That three National Hockey League clubs are more than a little interested in Vancouver is a sign of things to come, and shows that the NHL is quite aware of the possibility that it may not be long before major league hockey will come to the Pacific Coast in one form or another.

Left to itself, the Western Hockey League could eventually become a second major league and challenge for the Stanley Cup. It has the arenas and the population centres in Los Angeles, San Francisco and Portland, and Seattle will have a suitable arena when the world fair is ended. The last big hurdle will be overcome on the day that Vancouver gets a badly-needed arena. Calgary, San Diego or Long Beach could provide the sixth entry, and the WHL could build up from there.

And it wouldn't take as long as many think before they would provide a calibre of hockey at least close to what the NHL serves up.

It's not likely the WHL will be left on its own. For the moment, the NHL is quite content to remain as a closed and extremely profitable six-club corporation, warding off suggestions of expansion with the old excuse of lack of enough talent to staff more than the present number of major league clubs. But it is watching the situation in the West, and not likely to surrender its virtual control of professional hockey.

If and when the NHL decides expansion of major league hockey is inevitable, it will almost certainly control that expansion. There is hardly any chance at all that it will allow the WHL to become a threat on its own.

Should the WHL start shaping up as a possible threat, the NHL could make franchise offers to status-conscious Los Angeles and San Francisco, and, perhaps, Vancouver to leave the rest of the WHU holding the bag.

Should it appear that there are six strong centres on the Pacific Coast, the NHL could offer to make them a separate division. And in the very unlikely event that WHL clubs decide to stick together and try to go on their own, the NHL could expand by taking in cities like Cleveland, Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Minneapolis or even Winnipeg, and with its control of playing talent, keep the WHL a minor league for at least another decade.

There are many possibilities, and all the most likely are controlled by the six clubs who make up the NHL.

Reluctance of the NHL to expand is quite understandable. Montreal and Toronto haven't had an unsold ticket for many a season. New York Rangers this past season grossed more than a million dollars for the first time. Chicago interest is again high and no money is being lost in either Detroit or Boston. The arenas are club-controlled or the clubs are arena-controlled, making everything nestand doubly profitable.

But expansion cannot be stalled off much longer. It's a specious argument. It's now agreed, to say there aren't enough calibre players for more clubs and to cite the superiority of the three top clubs in the NHL as proof.

That's putting the cart before the horse. There will never be enough players for more than six clubs as long as there are only six clubs. The weaker ones would get better, but so would the strong clubs, so that the difference is always there. No sport can produce enough players for expansion until it expands.

Everything is relative. If the overall strength of a major league is lowered by the spreading of talent, it still remains a major league, with the same difference between it and the minor leagues as before. But it will only be a temporary condition. Demand regulates supply and it wouldn't be more than one generation before we would have 12 major league clubs playing the same calibre of hockey as the six are playing today.

This is already being surely. If slowly, proven in the major baseball leagues, which have added four new clubs in the past two seasons.

It will be some time before Los Angeles Angels, Houston Colts, New York Mets or Washington Senators are capable of challenging the rest. But last year, in their first season, the Angels won more games than Kansas City, as many as Minnesota and only six fewer than Boston and eight fewer than Cleveland. In their debut, the Angels were as major league as half of the eight established clubs.

The new clubs have not only produced a number of new stars of their own, but they produced new stars for the established clubs, who had to give young players the chance that otherwise might have been denied them.

The result will be the same when major league hockey expands. It is ridiculous to believe that Canada can still only produce enough players—less than 100—for six clubs. Expansion has to come. It will come quite soon, but when and where will be the prerogative of the NHL.

Every Bout Packs Punch

All-Star Line-Up for Boxing Card

The card is completed for tomorrow night's Pacific Northwest Meet of Champions, and it only takes a glance to show why promoters are beaming at the talent they have gathered.

Every fight boasts at least one Golden Gloves or Army amateur champion, and in most cases both fighters can boast a title or two.

BIG BATTLE

It's difficult to pick a feature bout from the 10 on the card at Memorial Arena, but perhaps the one that stands out is the middleweight battle between Larry Cardinal of the Victoria PPCLI and Walter Korack of Edmonton.

Cardinal is Pacific Northwest and B.C. Golden Gloves champion this year, was Canadian army champ in 1961, and Canadian champion and runner-up in the Pan-American Games in Mexico City in 1958.

STOUT FOE

Cardinal has had his troubles in finding worthwhile opponents of late, but Korack should fill the bill. He was runner-up in the Canadian championships last year, and Canadian champion and member of the Olympic Games team in 1956.

Card opens at 8 p.m., when Danny McDonald of Victoria PPCLI, who lost a close decision in the B.C. Golden Gloves final, meets Cesare Biancofiore of Vancouver in a welterweight bout.

Next comes a light-welterweight bout putting Tommy Black of Victoria against Kalman Santosi of Vancouver. Black was Island Golden Boy in 1961 and Island champion again this year. He lost a close decision to Santosi in the B.C. semi-finals.

Freddy Clark of Vancouver, Canadian heavyweight champion in 1961 and B.C. champion this year, faces Claude Pelt of Edmonton, Canadian army champion last year.

Then come flyweights Harry Aldard of Portland and Allan Campbell of Vancouver, followed by a light-heavyweight meeting between Earl Pilgrim of Victoria and Ralph Thurn, Haney.

Portland Golden Gloves champion Len Kasey will oppose PPCLI's Cal Omond in the featherweight class. Omond was Canadian army

New Cars Speedway Attraction

Hottest driver on Island last season, Billy Foster tests seating in his new car, imported from Seattle by owner Jimmy Haslam. Car is one of several Modified Sportsmen models to make appearance at Western Speedway when season opens Saturday night.

'Sportsmen' Latest Wrinkle As Stock Car Track Opens

First presented here in the Labor Day Deffodil Cup race last year, the Sportsmen are basically the same as the old sprint cars, with a roof added to the normal racing-car body. Such established drivers as Dave Cooper, Billy Foster, Dick Varley, Bob Mawle, Ray Pottinger and Red Burke are all converting to Sportsmen this season.

Increase in the number of stock cars is expected to come about as a result of tightening up of rules by the Vancouver Island Track Racing Association, which barred the hopping up of stock engines. Time trials Saturday start at 7.30.

Curt Simmons Cools Giants 'Whiz Kid' Days Live Again

If Curt Simmons has spent the $65,000 bonus he got for signing with the Philadelphia Phillies in 1947 he isn't currently worrying what the future will bring.

Due to celebrate his 33rd birthday on May 19, and 12 years after he pitched Philadelphia's "Whiz Kids" to a National League pennant, Simmons appears to be heading for his best season.

Last night in a "must" game, Simmons became the first pitcher to go the distance against San Francisco Giants.

CURT SIMMONS ... cunning Card threatening to make a run-away of the National League race.

Pitching with a cunning he has developed in the last three seasons after time took the edge off his fast ball, Simmons eased the St. Louis Cardinals to a 7-3 win over the league leaders for his fifth win in a still-uneaten season.

He gave up nine hits, and while three of them were home runs, he was unbeatable with men on the base.

STAN THE MAN

Musial's league-leading batting average to .304.

Los Angeles Dodgers, who may be straightened away now, moved into third place by clobbering Houston Colts 9-2, as Johnny Podres squeezed out of bases-loaded jams in the fourth and eighth innings. Five singles, three of them infield rollers, an error, sacrifice fly and a wild pitch gave the speedy Dodgers five runs in the ninth inning.

PIRATES SKIDDING

Bob Purkey joined Simmons at 50 by pitching Cincinnati Reds to a 7-4 win over Philadelphia, and Milwaukee Braves kept Pittsburgh Pirates on the slide with a 4-2 win.

Although they didn't get a hit until one was out in the seventh inning, New York Yankees lacked a game on their American League lead by taking Boston Red Sox, 4-1.

Bill Monbouquette retired the first 13 Yankees who came to bat, walked the 14th, got a double play, then set down more men in a row before running into trouble.

HOT LINE

Rookie Tom Tresh started it with a bunt single, then Gary Geiger dropped a hot liner by Roger Maris. Monbouquette whiffed Mickey Mantle for the third straight time but Yogi Berra walked to load the bases. Elston Howard cleared them with a double and scored on Bill Skowron's single.

Meanwhile, Whitey Ford had been holding the Bronx scoreless himself. But he lost his shutout with two out in the

Stan Joseph Back; Still Stopping Rubber For 18th Campaign

By JIM TAYLOR

Stan Joseph once belonged to the Indians. So did Manhattan Island, and there is some question as to which they had first. Victoria Shamrocks would be only too happy to see the Indians take him back.

Joseph started off his 18th season in the Inter-City Lacrosse League last night by leading Vancouver to a 10-3 victory over the Shamrocks at Memorial Arena. And if he's night. Defeat, when it came, was an expected thing, and under the circumstances the Rocks performed rather well. So much for excuses. Now back to Joseph.

Stan was playing his first game since the league lifted his suspension. Something about signing to play for both Vancouver and Norburn in the same season.

'NOT SO SMART'

"I'm not so smart," Joseph explained candidly. "But the 36-year-old Wooden Indian had all the angles covered on the Shamrocks last night."

Shamrocks, who had scored 11 goals on rookie Joe Comeau Tuesday, soon found out they were up against a different proposition. Joseph lapped up long shots as if they were his sponsor's product, and on shots from close in he simply refused to be outkicked. He finished with 24 stops.

BREEZEFAST

Meanwhile, Vancouver was scoring on all three of its odd-man plays, building up a 6-1 lead at the half, and breezing past the bone-weary Shamrocks to tie them for second place.

Al Davies and Ron Jay had a goal each for Victoria. Whitley Severson scored one and set up another, which only figures.

After all, Severson is playing in his 19th season, and Joseph is only in his 18th. You can't beat experience.

Habs Will Make Definite Offer

VANCOUVER (CP)—Frank Selke, president and managing director of the Montreal Canadiens, said Wednesday the club "will definitely make an offer" to buy Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League.

The franchise is up for sale by the Pacific National Exhibition, who have set a May 15 deadline for offers.

Selke declined to elaborate, except to say that any other announcement "will have to be made by the local people involved."

Selke conferred earlier in the day with Leopold Bentley, wealthy lumberman, whose name has been linked with the national hockey league club among the list of possible bidders for the franchise.

Selke and Senator Hartland Molson, club owner, were to meet with PNE officials today.

In an interview earlier Wednesday, Selke did offer a general comment on Montreal's policy for minor league ties.

He said: "As long as hockey is played our players will not run dry. Player development is our strength now and in the future."

Other possible entries in the bidding are Harry Ornest, Vancouver vending machine broker, former Vancouver mayor Fred Hume, and Arthur Edwards of Long Beach, Calif., a paint company owner.

Conerly to Assist In Roughie Camp

REGINA (CP)—Charlie Conerly, veteran quarterback star of the New York Giants of the National Football League, will attend the Saskatchewan Roughrider training camp as an assistant coach, the Western Football Conference club announced today.

Conerly, who played six of his 14 seasons under Roughrider coach S. V. Owen when Owen was head coach of the Giants, will principally handle the quarterbacks, the club said.

Bob Placek, who came to Riders in a trade with Cleveland Browns of the NFL, has signed his 1962 contract, the club also announced today.

Placek, a quarterback, ended up last year as a WFC all-star line-backer.

Color-Trooping Preview Open to Public Today

The public has been invited to attend a full-dress preview of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry color-trooping ceremony this afternoon at Work Point Barracks.

Some 5,000 seats will be available for those who wish to watch the colorful pageant slated to begin at 2 p.m.

The regiment will officially troop its colors Saturday—but the ceremony will not be open to the general public.

City Homes Needed Now As Polling Places June 18

Polling stations are "urgently needed" in the Victoria electoral district for the June 18 federal election, returning officer Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre said yesterday.

Homeowners will be paid $20 for use of their home as a polling station and double that amount if two polling stations are in the same building.

A total of 125 polling stations will be needed in Victoria electoral district which includes the city, Oak Bay, the municipality of Esquimalt and the Saanich peninsula south of North Dairy Road, said Mr. de St. Jorre.

"Voters' lists cannot be printed until we get the polling stations" because the voting places have to be included on the lists, he said.

Voting will be from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. daylight saving time, June 18.

Persons renting their homes for this occasion will have to provide a curtained-off corner of a room with a table or desk and a pencil behind the curtain for the voters.

They will also have to provide another table for the deputy returning officer and his poll clerk, along with six chairs.

Persons interested should telephone the returning officer at any one of three numbers, EV 6-4361, EV 6-4362 or EV 6-4363.

Payroll Aids Economy

The work force at Yarrow's Ltd. shipyards is expected to hold at almost its present level of 1,100 men until close to the end of the year, general manager John Wallace said yesterday.

He said this represents a weekly payroll of some $100,000 in the economy of Greater Victoria.

The yard is completing outfitting of a new destroyer escort for the RCN, building a fisheries research vessel and several barges, and it has a backlog of orders for several more barges and a Canadian Coast Guard patrol vessel.

LAUNCHING SET

The $1,800,000 fisheries research vessel G. B. Reid will be launched June 20 and is scheduled for delivery before the end of the year.

About 100 men are employed on this job at present. The vessel will be launched with machinery installed and shaft and propeller in position. The number of men working on the job is expected to drop to about 75 during the outfitting.

SEA TRIALS

Another 500 men are working on completion of the destroyer escort Saskatchewan and this figure is expected to remain constant at least until the ship undergoes contractors' sea trials scheduled for November.

In August "basin" trials will be held aboard the warship during which boilers will be fired up and the machinery tested without the vessel leaving the dock.

The first of six medium-sized general cargo barges for Evans, Coleman and Evans Ltd. has recently been laid down. The last of the barges is scheduled for delivery in mid-August.

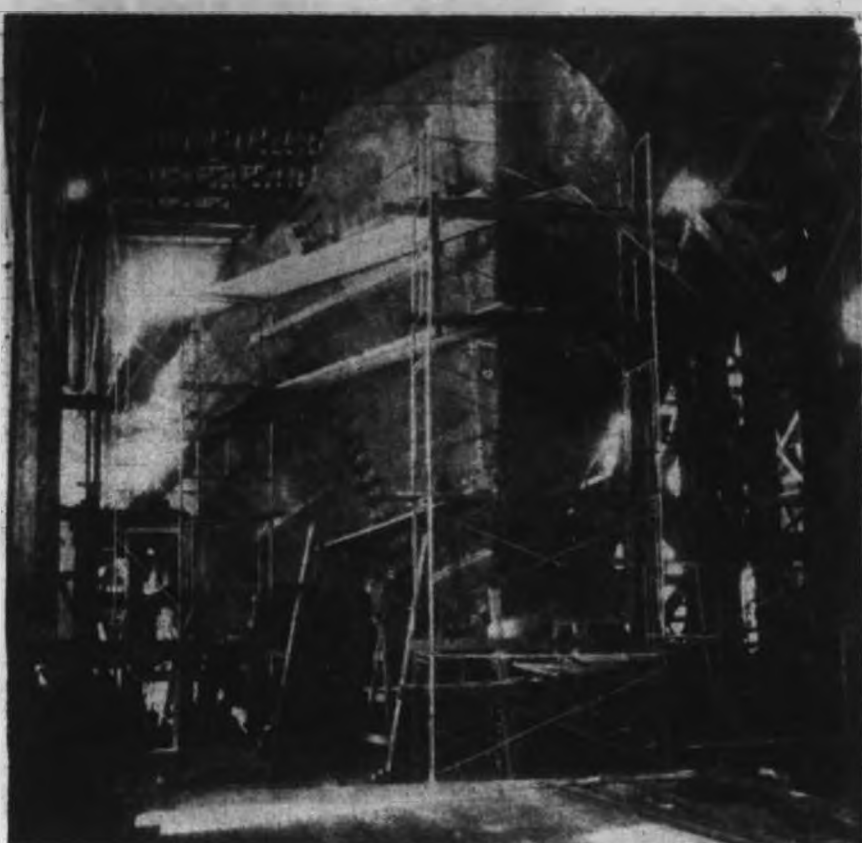

Nearing completion and due for launching early in June is the first of two giant bulk carriers for Island Tug and Barge Ltd.

300 EMPLOYED

The all-steel barges are 360 feet long, the largest on the Pacific. The second barge in this order will be delivered by the end of July. The job employs 200 men.

As soon as the fisheries research vessel is launched in June the first of two large general cargo barges, each 235 feet in length, will be started for Gulf of Georgia Towing, Vancouver. They will be completed by the end of August.

Start will be made in mid-August on the $774,000 Coast Guard vessel which is scheduled for delivery in 1963.

Research Ship Takes Shape

Launching date for new fisheries research vessel G. B. Reid has been set for June 20 at Yarrow's Ltd. shipyards. The $1,800,000 ship will be delivered before end of year and is designed to help scientists study secrets of North Pacific.—(Colonist photo.)

Army Thrills Crowd In First Sunset Rite

In an eye-catching display of precision drills, three bands of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry carried out the first sunset ceremony in front of the legislative buildings last night.

Drawing round after round of applause from a rain-ignoring crowd of more than 1,500, the brightly-clad corps of drums of the 1st and 2nd battalions and the regimental band gave a flawless performance.

Drumsticks flashed and clicked in time of the highlights of the evening as the combined drum corps of the two battalions put on a display of precision drumming carried out without a single spoken word of command.

In the final minutes of the ceremony the regimental band closed up with the drum corps to excerpts from Pomp and Circumstance and after playing the evening hymn sounded Retreat as the flag was slowly lowered by two regimental sergeants.

WONDERFUL PLACE

"I was a little worried," said Capt. H. A. Jeffrey of Edmonton, PPCLI director of music. "We had only time for one rehearsal. This certainly is a wonderful place for putting on these ceremonies."

The regimental band and 2nd Battalion corps of drums are here from Edmonton to take part in the trooping of the color ceremony at Work Point Barracks Saturday.

Rail Cut Repaired By E & N

Broken rails have been repaired and freight service restored between Victoria and up-Island, an E & N railway spokesman said yesterday.

Service was disrupted early Monday when a rockslide derailed two diesel locomotives pulling a load of freight cars. None of the freight crew was injured in the accident 15 miles from Victoria which spilled the head engine 100 feet down the side of a mountain.

The passenger daylight is not yet back in operation.

Cowichan Bay Blaze

Inn Owner's Son Dies Three Others Flee Fire

DUNCAN—One son of the owner of the Cowichan Bay Inn died early Tuesday when flames destroyed two units of the inn. The wife and two small children of another son were rescued.

Denis McRae Campbell, 27, died despite heroic efforts by Lloyd Gudehill, an assistant fisheries inspector who occupied the adjoining unit.

MANAGED TO HAVE

However, Mr. Gudehill managed to save Mrs. Don Campbell and her two small children.

Inn owner Fred Campbell, his son Don and the victim's wife and six-year-old son were in Vancouver at the time.

Car Robinson, chief of the Cowichan Bay volunteer fire brigade and a brother-in-law of the victim, said the cause probably will never be known but the fire could have started from a smouldering cigarette. Mr. Gudehill said he was aroused by the burning smell shortly before midnight but was unable to enter the young man's room. It was already engulfed by flames.

He rushed to the apartment on the lower floor, led Mrs. Don Campbell and her children to safety and, after another unsuccessful attempt to rescue Denis Campbell, turned in the alarm.

DOOR LOCKED

He said the door to the victim's unit was locked. After breaking the glass and unlocking it from inside, he was driven back by the flames. "It was like an inferno and I couldn't do anything to save him," he said.

Quick response of the fire brigade prevented the fire from spreading to other buildings. One hour later 20 volunteers had the blaze under control.

LIKE BLOWTORCH

"When we arrived minutes after the blaze was discovered," said the chief, "flames roared out of the window like a blowtorch."

Another eyewitness said all of Cowichan Bay was lit by the flames.

Freighter Hits Dock In Fog Bank Mishap

PORT ALBERNI—Damage was assessed following collision of a 10,000-ton freighter with the end of the recently extended dock at MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd.'s Alberni pulp and paper division.

The German ship Kersten Miles escaped unscathed from the encounter in which piling was twisted and a walkway smashed. The vessel, caught in a bank of fog as it was about to dock, plowed through the walkway at the wharf edge, cut a V-shaped notch in the dock and the bow was touching a shed when it came to a stop.

The undamaged freighter took on cargo and left for Tahiti, en route to Hawaii.

Start will be made in mid-August on the $774,000 Coast Guard vessel which is scheduled for delivery in 1963.

Hillcrest Camp At a Standstill

DUNCAN—Logging operations of the Hillcrest Lumber Co. at Mesachie Lake came to a complete standstill yesterday for the first time since the free bus dispute began Jan. 2.

Eighteen loggers who were not affected by the dispute since they live at Mesachie Lake did not report to work.

Neither Hillcrest spokesman Hector Stone nor IWA local president Weldon Juhenville could give any reason why the 18 did not go to work. Mr. Stone also was unable to say what the company's next move would be.

Seventy other employees still are refusing to work until the company reinstates the 20-year free bus service which was dropped Jan. 2 as an economy measure.

It took them daily to and from their homes in the Duncan and Lake Cowichan areas.

The other 18 stayed on the job until Tuesday when they asked for "a day off" following the company's hiring of a 10-man Victoria contract logging crew.

The company withdrew the contract crew later Tuesday "in order not to widen the breach" between the firm and the IWA.

Sources here said there were no definite plans for the 18 men to return.

The company has permission from the Labor Relations Board to sue Mr. Juhenville and the local in the matter, and the board also issued a "cease and desist" order against the IWA.

Mr. Juhenville said yesterday: "As far as the company suit is concerned, I've heard nothing about it yet."

Peter Bruton's NOTEBOOK

INCIDENTAL INTELLIGENCE: Social Credit, it seems, has forged into an early lead in the mixed metaphor sweepstakes.

Two examples . . .

Deputy leader Neal Cassady, speaking in Victoria, said Canada was in a real pickle and something must be done to get the economy moving forward since "we are going backward because we are standing still."

National leader Robert Thompson, speaking in Vancouver, said if Canada became any more socialistic we will become a nation of look-alikes, think-alikes, morning-after "manipulated by a socialist-ventriloquist government in which we are merely cogs."

NOTES TO YOU:

We thought we had a dandy the other day when eagle-eyed colleague J. T. Jones pointed out a list of the call numbers of the various Saanich police cars. The numbers start at 50 and sure enough one was missing. But when we phoned to make sure a voice said: "Tell the wise guy that we have to get a Car 54—it's on school patrol." So there! The Seattle world's fair has lured a whole army of budding song writers to the Pacific Northwest and they're just bursting to break out in musical tribute. One suggested the title: "Meet Me At the Needle and We'll Get to the Point." Ouch! . . . The David R. Francis of the Christian Science Monitor who gave that excellent rundown on President Kennedy's relations with the U.S. business world as "the televidin in the mirror" is the same Dave Francis who was a Colonist reporter a few years ago.

RANDOM HARVEST: Back in Scotland after a brief return "home" here is Capt. D. J. Froedfoot, one-time city Liberal M.L.A. "Cappy" may be missing the fun of the federal election campaign but when here he did mention the possibility that he would stand for the British House of Commons. . . . Esquimalt-Saanich Conservative George Chatterbox opens his campaign rooms at the Town and Country shopping centre at 2 p.m. today and is looking forward to people dropping in for a chat! . . . Sacred candidate in the city, James Audain, entered the election wars at Central Junior High the other night and all his friends began mispronouncing his name.

THE THINGS WE HEAR: On CFAX the other night the announced led off the news by stating: "Reeve George (last name of Saanich announced today)." etc. . . . A few seconds later, just to show that it was not an accident, he said "the reeve," etc. Wonder how Reeve Stan Murphy feels about it?

GETTING TO KNOW YOU! National Social Credit leader Robert Thompson is apparently under no illusions that his name has become well-known.

Mr. Thompson told Saanich federal candidates in Vancouver the other day: "You have to sell me and let them know you don't have far to fall."

who I am. I guarantee there's a minority of Social Crediters in B.C. who know very little about Bob Thompson."

THE CAMPAIGN TRAIL: Latest word is that Liberal leader Lester Pearson will make a return visit to Victoria May 31—two days after the scheduled visit of Prime Minister Diefenbaker. Mr. Pearson will be available for a joint meeting of the Victoria Rotary and Kiwanis clubs that day and also plans a bit of speech-making that night. . . . Three B.C. cabinet ministers will hit the cross-Canada election trail in an attempt to boost Social Credit's "on-to-Ottawa" campaign. In the coming few weeks, the team will consist of Attorney General Robert Bennett, Minister of Health Phil Goggin and Education and Labor Minister Leslie Peterson. Also planning a campaign East is Premier Bennett. . . . Esquimalt-Saanich NDP candidate Geoff Mitchell feels more success will come from house-to-house calls than by making speeches to the party faithful who are usually "way in the majority at meetings."

INSTANT ITEM: If you have both feet on the ground, you don't have far to fall.

Lumber Firms

Market Men Visiting Island

DUNCAN—A group of 35 delegates from European Common Market countries including Italy, France, Belgium, Germany and Holland is here for several days to inspect the lumber industry in the Cowichan Valley.

The delegates, guests of the provincial government, are studying methods and market conditions. Firms to be toured today are MacMillan and Powell at Chemainus, B.C. Forest Products in Youbou, Hillcrest at Mesachie Lake and Western Forest Industries on Honey-moon Bay.

In Port Alberni, six Common Market delegates from Holland arrived Wednesday morning for a two-day tour of forest

Somass Mill Receives Safety Prize

PORT ALBERNI—Somass shingle mill division of MacMillan Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. has received the 1961 first-place award of the national safety council, shingle mill section.

The award was presented to employees by H. P. Page, manager of Port Alberni sawmills and shingle mill, when the plant had been working for a year and three days without a single accident. The last accident, a sprained ankle, occurred May 2, 1961.

Driving Charge Dismissed

DUNCAN—A charge laid by John Cruickshank of Vancouver against Pte. Daniel Henry Penny, PPCL, of driving without due consideration for others, was dismissed by police court yesterday.

Driving south on the Trans-Canada Highway near the flashing traffic light at the Kokislah Bridge March 30, Mr. Cruickshank observed a north-bound army truck behind a pickup truck suddenly pull onto the left shoulder of the highway.

He drove between the two vehicles, halted, turned around and stopped the army truck driven by Pte. Penny. The private told him the truck had a defect in the brake system which pulled it over to the wrong side.

Pte. Penny told court the pickup in front, approaching the flashing light, suddenly slowed down. As he tried to brake, the 2½-ton truck was pulled to the wrong side of the highway.

Comox-Alberni

Four Candidates On One Platform

COURTENAY—Jaycees here have invited Comox-Alberni federal election candidates to speak at a joint meeting June 6.

Mayor W. C. Moore, Liberal; Tom Barnett, NDP; and H. C. McQuillan, Conservative, have indicated their willingness to address joint meetings.

Dan Campbell, Secord M.L.A., said his party's candidate, to be named Saturday at Bowser, will take part.

Up for the nomination are Jack Finnerty, city contractor and resort operator, William Hallgren, Port McNeill; Ian S. Dodds, Englewood, and Dennis Fitzgerald and Gus Frigstad, both of Port Alberni.

Some federal cabinet ministers are expected here to support Mr. McQuillan and Prime Minister Diefenbaker is expected to arrive at Comox when he visits the Island although it is doubtful if he will address a meeting.

Robert Strachan, leader of the B.C. opposition, is to speak on Mr. Barnett's behalf. Secord plans are not yet known.

Meat Row Explodes

By Colonist Staff Writers

Greater Victoria medical health officer Dr. J. L. Whitbread said last night he will consult city officials today to see if legal action can be launched against a butcher shop accused of selling diseased meat.

His latest statement came a day after he told reporters that sale of such meat did not constitute a breach of existing law.

But up until last night City Solicitor T. P. O'Grady said he had not been consulted on the case and could not say offhand whether or not prosecution is possible.

He recalled a section of one city bylaw which forbids sale of diseased meat on pain of a $50 fine.

Dr. Whitbread again refused to name the butcher shop where a metropolitan health board inspector said he confiscated seven pounds of abscess-riddled beef liver and learned a further 10 pounds of liver from the same beast had been sold to customers.

The public health chief said so far as he knows the health department could take no legal action even if a Greater Victoria resident died as the result of eating diseased meat. An official of the attorney-general's department doubted that criminal action would be advisable in such a case, but added that a civil action for damages could be launched.

"There is a high degree of civil liability on a butcher," the official said.

If the 17 pounds of infected liver did nothing else (up to press time there were still no reports of ill-effects from its unknown consumers), it sparked these moves.

With rare unanimity the heads of the four Greater-Victoria municipalities called for compulsory meat inspection.

Agriculture Minister Frank Richter said he will ask for early action on his request to municipal officials for a ruling on whether or not the B.C. Municipal Act forbids municipalities from passing their own meat inspection by-laws.

Heathman Faces Locked Doors

CHARLES HEATHMAN

VANCOUVER (CP)—Charles Heathman, who told a Vancouver newspaper April 21 he killed a 10-year-old boy, Wednesday was committed to a mental institution for an indefinite term.

Magistrate James Bartman said he hoped that Heathman, 30, would receive treatment that would help restore him to a normal life.

Magistrate Bartman said Heathman's case would be reviewed from time to time before any decision was made on his release.

Soul-Searching

The magistrate said he had "lain awake at night searching his soul" in considering his verdict, but on the evidence before him he could make no other choice.

"We ought to show restraint and forbearance," the magistrate said in preamble. "Only God knows what is in this man's heart. Let us be dignified and charitable to him and all concerned."

Heathman was twice sentenced to be hanged for the suffocation murder of 10-year-old Donald Otley in Vernon, B.C. Labor Day, 1960. He was later freed by the B.C. Court of Appeal.

Held in Seattle

Under the law of double jeopardy a man finally acquitted of a charge after due process of law, cannot be tried again on the same charge.

It was under a Mental Hospitals Act warrant that Heathman was sought immediately after the Sun confession was made. He was arrested in Seattle April 23.

Heathman told Magistrate Bartman Wednesday his story told to Sun city editor Jack Books and reporter Simma Holt was not true, and that he was drunk when he spoke to them in was unable to contact her base, a long session Good Friday.

Oak Bay Cuts Rate!

By JACK FRY

Oak Bay council yesterday reduced its tax levy one-half mill below the 1961 level by holding its 1962 budget within $112,338 of last year's budget.

It was the only municipality in Greater Victoria which has a lower mill rate than last year.

"We were attempting to hold the line and still maintain the service," said Reeve George Murdoch. "We chopped off a lot of items in every department."

RATE OF 40.5

The 1962 total mill rate is 40.5 compared with 41 last year. The tax for general operation and debt purposes is down to 22½ mills from 23 mills in 1961. Schools are 18 mills, the same as they were last year.

Taxes will be "up slightly" for those who had an upward revision during last year's re-assessment of land and improvements. They will be down

Airliner Crash Kills 24

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—A Brazilian airliner with 27 persons aboard crashed and exploded while making a landing approach in rain at Vitoria airport last night. There were three survivors.

Police at Vitoria, 250 miles north of here, reported the plane burst into flames as it was making the approach.

Daylight At Dusk

Gathering dusk on lawns in front of legislative buildings at 9 p.m. yesterday was dispersed by photographic trickery. Photographer Jim Ryan placed camera with super-wide angle lens on grass in front of marble-jacketed Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry corps of drums. He exposed for one second at F8 and overdeveloped film to get daylight effect which provides unique look at sunset ceremonies.

B.C. Hits Low

Climate 'Poor' For Capital

VANCOUVER (CP)—An independent economic report says British Columbia has a poor investment climate and the inflow of private capital to the province last year hit a six-year low.

W. B. Haughan, president of Grosvenor-Laing (B.C.) Ltd., says in an introductory review of a 130-page report called "Real Estate and Business Trends, 1962," published by technical experts of the Vancouver Real Estate Board:

Government spending is

no substitute for private capital inflow.

The slowing of capital investment last year slowed establishment of secondary and manufacturing industry vital to a healthy economy.

B.C. can expect a marked expansion in secondary industry "only when Canada adopts a positive trading policy, and when the investment climate in the province is improved."

Total capital investment in B.C. for all sectors during 1961 was $1,200,000,000—$130.

'More Jobs, Trade If Tories Return'

Grits Play On Jobless Says Fleming

WALKERTON, Ont. (CP)—Finance Minister Fleming said Wednesday night the Liberal party is not as happy as it was when unemployment was increasing.

"They have tried to make a political football of unemployment, and that is the sum total of their contribution to the solution of the problem."

CLINTON, Ont. (CP)—An annual increase of 250,000 jobs under a Progressive Conservative government was forecast Wednesday night by Trade Minister Hees.

Mr. Hees, speaking at the nomination convention for Huron riding, also said the export trade will continue to expand and that there will be an export surplus on merchandise trade of $400,000,000 this year.

L. Elston Cardiff, 73, member for Huron for 22 years, was named unanimously to contest the riding in the federal election.

No Matter How You Slice It...

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A Federal Trade Commission hearing examiner yesterday ordered National Bakers Services, Inc., to stop claiming "Hollywood bread" would help people lose weight.

The examiner's order, not a final decision, said the bread contains just as many calories per pound as other breads, but is sliced thinner.

Liver Unpopular

Consumers in six of 11 independent Greater Victoria butcher shops showed a marked disinclination for liver. One butcher said liver sales at his store dropped from a normal 20 pounds to two pounds overnight.

Seven of 10 independent butchers thought that the metropolitan health board should have disclosed the name of the shop in which the tainted meat was found.

Council of Women president Mrs. H. I. MacKenzie said meat inspection will be on the agenda of the next general meeting on Monday.

A sample of the abcessed liver was delivered to Royal Jubilee Hospital for bacteriological and pathological examination to determine the nature of the infection.

One time meat inspection officer Ald. Geoffrey Edgewell said he was shocked by the case and reversed his stand of Jan. 8 this year when he referred to meat inspection as just another burden on taxpayers.

Metropolitan health board officials reported they have been unable to trace the balance of the carcass from which the liver came and said it might not have been sold in this area. Earlier a spokesman said the balance of the animal would probably also be infected.

Municipal councils have been reluctant to pass meat inspection bylaws themselves because of a widely-held belief that a two-year-old Municipal Act amendment militates against such legislation.

But Agriculture Minister Richter said he is not altogether sure that this is the case. He said he has inquired of the municipal affairs department if this is so and so far has not had a reply.

He said it was certainly not the intention of the government to deprive municipalities of the right to pass compulsory meat inspection bylaws but that the amendment might have inadvertently had this effect.

Inspection Area

Mr. Richter expressed concern at the Victoria situation and advocated establishment of a meat inspection area under terms of the B.C. Meat Inspection Act.

Free enterprise must take the first step by building a custom slaughterhouse at a minimum cost of about $30,000. The agriculture minister said he believes this is no problem and local health authorities say two groups are interested in providing such facilities.

When a proper abattoir is built Mr. Richter's department would declare the southern end of the island a meat inspection area and no uninspected meat could be sold except by a producer directly to a consumer. The province would support an application from the abattoir to the federal government for federal inspection services.

Mr. Richter anticipates no trouble in obtaining federal inspection.

Federal inspection might actually help local producers, he agreed, because it would qualify them to sell to certain large food chains which insist on federal approval of their meat.

Local producers who wanted to sell for resale in the inspection area would have to have their stock slaughtered at a custom abattoir and would pay a nominal charge (50 cents a head for beef) for inspection. The producer would then be free to sell the meat to whom ever he wished.

Mayor R. B. Wilson yesterday led the municipal vanguard on the meat inspection drive.

He termed sale of the offending liver "an extremely serious matter."

Saanich Reeve Stanley Murphy said he was surprised to learn that public health authorities did not have meat supplies under close scrutiny already. He said meat inspection must come but that producers must be free to sell where they please and not be captive suppliers to a slaughterhouse.

Oak Bay Reeve George Murdoch was critical of the

Nuclear Sub In Collision

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The nuclear submarine USS Permit, with 80 men aboard, and the freighter Hawaiian Citizen collided late last night about 80 miles southwest of the Golden Gate.

The navy said there were no injuries on either vessel and both were proceeding to San Francisco.

A navy spokesman said the radio aerial of the Permit was broken in the collision and she was unable to contact her base, a long session Good Friday.

Did Blasts Betray Lusitania Cargo?

LONDON (AP)—An American skin diver who plunged 300 feet to the wreck of the Lusitania has uncovered indications the Germans may have been right in saying the liner carried munitions when they sank her 47 years ago.

The famous British passenger ship went to the bottom of the Atlantic May 7, 1915, 20 minutes after being struck by a German torpedo. Of the 1,959 persons on board, 1,198 died.

Among the drowned were nearly 200 Americans and the sinking as much as any other single event, set the mood for U.S. entry two years later into the First World War.

The Germans claimed they were justified in treating the Lusitania as a ship of war because she was carrying munitions and may have been armed.

In an attempt to clear up the mystery, 23-year-old John Light of Elmhurst, N.Y., led a team of divers to investigate the wreck 10 miles off the south coast of Ireland.

Underwater pictures by his expedition were shown on British television Tuesday night.

Light's findings led him to believe the wreck of the Lusitania has been tampered with. A section of steel deck appears to have been cut away with torches.

Only one other expedition—as far as is known—has ever been down to the wreck. This was a private venture in 1933.

There is no dispute that the ship was designed to carry guns. The British claim, however, it was unarmed when torpedoed. Light found no gun on the foredeck as shown in the ship's plans.

Said BBC television producer Maurice Harvey, who worked with Light on the subject:

"The evidence seems to indicate the wreck has been tampered with. Light believes British admiralty divers have been down to remove the ship's guns."

There is more evidence that the Lusitania was carrying ammunition. The ship's manifest, said Harvey, showed the cargo included 4,000 cases of small arms ammunition.

At least one survivor remembered hearing three explosions. The log of the German submarine U-20 states that it fired only one torpedo and that the detonation was followed by a larger, internal explosion.

"Everything suggests an explosion on the side away from the torpedo," said BBC commentator Patrick Troughton.
